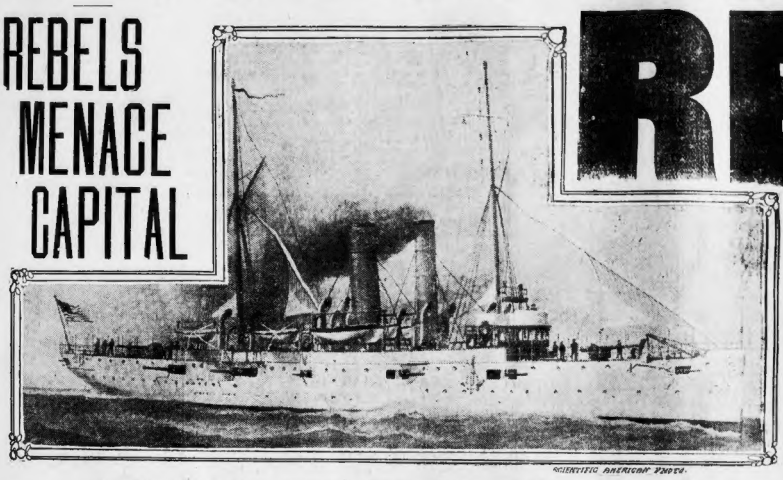
U. S. WARSHIP NOW AT HAVANA TO RESCUE PALMA

REBELS MENACE CAPITAL



SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN' PHOTO.

U. S. PROTECTED CRUISER DENVER, NOW IN HAVANA HARBOR.

Big Force of Insurgents Advancing on City, President Prepares to Flee to Protection of American Cruiser—Marines May Be Landed to Guard American Interests.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Ready to rescue President Palma, should his life be threatened by the revolutionists, the United States protected cruiser Denver is to-day anchored in Havana Harbor, almost within sight of the President's palace.

Five United States warships are to-day hovering around Cuba within easy striking distance. They are there at the request of President Palma to President Roosevelt.

It is said that at this time President Roosevelt's policy does not contemplate intervention, but should that become necessary he will have the means at hand.

U. S. READY TO STRIKE.

The military arm of the United States is ready to strike, too. A large force of troops is in readiness to be moved at an instant's notice. Transports, too, are available at New York to-day.

The cruiser Denver is at Havana ready to rescue President Palma and Commander Colwell has been instructed to care for all Americans in the capital should emergency arise. The gunboat Marietta is at Cienfuegos, the Des Moines at Key West, the Dixie, with 300 marines, and the Columbia, with 100 marines, are both on the way to Guantanamo where they will arrive to-day.

REBELS ADVANCE ON CAPITAL.

Dispatches from Havana to-day state that Havana faces the gravest menace in its history. Insurgents, in overwhelming numbers, are advancing on the capital from the south and west and it is expected that an attack will be made within a few hours. That President Palma's government is doomed is the general opinion.

The arrival of the United States cruiser Denver in Havana harbor has hastened the crisis. Instead of assisting Palma it is believed it will be his undoing.

Intervention by the United States is now regarded as the only logical outcome of the struggle in the island. That this is close at hand is indicated by the arrival of the Denver and the dispatch of the Marietta to Cienfuegos.

This has forced the hand of the insurgents. They propose that when intervention comes they shall be in control of the capital so that it will be with them instead of the Palma government that the United States will have to deal.

RUSH B TLE PLANS.

To be in this position they must capture Havana before the United States government acts. That is why the insurgent armies are rushing toward the capital. Sixteen miles to the south of Havana General Loynaz del Castillo and Colonel Asbert are encamped with 3,000 insurgents. In the west Pino Guerra, by brilliant tactics, has left Colonel Avalos, commanding the only government force of fighting strength, stranded near Consolacion del Sur and is marching on the capital.

The railroad has been blown up between Consolacion and Havana and the bridge destroyed. Avalos cannot get back to the capital, while, miles to the eastward, Guerra with his entire army is hurrying toward Havana to make a junction with Asbert and Castillo, leaving the enemy stranded.

LIBERAL LEADER WITH ARMY.

With General Castillo's army is Alfredo Zayas, leader of the Liberal party. It is the plan of the insurgents, on capturing Havana, to set up a provisional government with Zayas as President. They will then demand that if the United States intervenes it shall deal with Zayas rather than the deposed Palma.

Cienfuegos is threatened with capture by the insurgents. Orestes Ferrera has sent word to the city to remove the women and children as he intends to attack the place.

FIGHTING EXPECTED TO-DAY.

From Havana come reports that fighting is expected outside of Havana to-day.

Acting Secretary of State Bacon said to-day that no special instructions had been issued to the commanders of the cruisers ordered to Cuba. He explained that the government was simply following precedents in having warships near that American interests might be protected.

The department believes that for the present the Denver will be sufficient for all needs along the northeastern coast of Cuba and the Marietta for the southern coast.

The messages exchanged between the State Department and Mr. Sleeper, charge at Havana, and other American representatives in Cuba, are sent also to President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, who for several weeks has personally directed the policy of the United State concerning the Cuban outbreak.

In this connection there was an important incident concerning the orders to the Denver. After the maneuvers in Long Island Sound the Denver proceeded to New London, Ct., for coal, sailing on Saturday for Norfolk, Va. In the meantime conditions in Cuba seemed to demand that a vessel immediately proceed to Havana, and the Denver was the only one available. Under orders from Oyster Bay she was reached at sea by wireless cipher dispatch, and changing her course headed directly for Havana.

The cruiser Tacoma, now at the Norfolk yard, will probably get under way in a day or two in the same manner as the cruiser Des Moines.

CUBAN CRISIS AT A GLANCE

General Castillo and Colonel Asbert, with 3,000 insurgents, encamped sixteen miles south of Havana.

Guerra's army from Pinar del Rio Province moving toward capital.

Colonel Avalos's loyal army stranded at Consolacion and cut off from Havana.

Combined insurgent armies preparing to attack capital when Guerra arrives in striking distance.

Insurgents plan to establish provisional government, with Senator Zayas as President.

United States cruiser Denver in Havana Harbor ready to protect American interests.

Gunboat Marietta expected at Cienfuegos.

Insurgents notified Cienfuegos to remove women and children, as attack will be made.

Fight between the advance guard of Castillo's army and loyalists expected momentarily.

MAYOR'S AXE HITS FRIEND OF LOMASNEY

Street Foreman Timothy F. Murphy Discharged by Superintendent Doyle.

MORE REMOVALS COMING

The first of the actual hostilities to follow the renewed declaration of war made by Mayor Fitzgerald against Martin Lomasney, the "Czar" of Ward 8 occurred to-day when Timothy F. Murphy, foreman of the North End yard of the Street Department was discharged by Superintendent James H. Doyle by order of Mayor Fitzgerald.

Murphy lives at No. 21 Allen street, Ward 8, and is a henchman of Lomasney's. He has been employed in the Street Department for several years and since 1904 has been foreman of the North End yard at a salary of $1,800 a year. That Lomasney should fully understand that there was no peace between Ward 8 and the administration, Mayor Fitzgerald ordered the appointment of one of his own lieutenants in Ward 3 to the position from which Murphy was removed. Michael Cleary of No. 45 Charter street, North End, who has been an inspector in the department for two years at $3 a day, gets Murphy's job.

Mayor Fitzgerald, although he will be back from Old Orchard to-day with his family, is not expected at City Hall until to-morrow. His return will be followed by the dismissal of a number of Ward 8 men enjoying good berths in the street, sewer and other departments.

A friend of the Mayor's is authority for the statement to-day that there will be no wholesale discharges at present, it being the intention of the Mayor to cut off a few heads as a warning to Lomasney and W. T. A. Fitzgerald that they must support Edward W. Dixon for the Senate in Wards 5 and 7 or suffer the consequences.

To-day's discharge is expected to serve as a warnig to W. T. A. Fitzgerald that he must line up with the Mayor. No one who knows Lomasney believes he will be intimidated, but that he will fight for Kiley with renewed vigor.

The renewed declaration of war by the Mayor against Ward 8 was made because the latter refused to accept Edward W. Dixon as the candidate for Senator in the district comprising Wards 6, 7 and 8 of Boston and Ward 4 of Cambridge.

New Appraisers' Site Angers Merchants;

TO FIGHT SEC. SHAW

Boston Business Men Determined to Force Reconsideration of Deal with Gas Company.

Boston merchants are more determined than ever that they will not "lay down" in the matter of the site selected for the new appraisers' stores and allow the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, through Jake Wardwell's pull in Washington, to sell the United States government an undesirable site for the new appraisers' stores at this port, especially for $250,000.

The merchants have enlisted the aid of the solid Congressional delegation from Massachusetts, headed by Senators Henry Cabot Lodge and W. Murray Crane. They will make renewed protest to Secretary Leslie M. Shaw of the United States Treasury against his selection of the Gas Company's property on Commercial street.

"Deal Good as Closed."

On the other hand, President James L. Richards of the Gas Company says the transaction is as good as closed and all that remains to wind up the deal is examination of the title and passing over the money.

The protesting merchants do a business that yields Uncle Sam about $20,000,000 revenue at this port alone. In spite of these immense interests, however, President Richards is so sure of the deal which has been put through, with the able assistance of the talented "Jake," that he practically tells the merchants that they can't do anything. He said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day:

"There is no room for doubt as to whether we have sold the property to the government or not. Only the examination of the titles and the paying over of the $250,000 purchase money remains to consummate the matter. The sale has been approved by the government.

"The sale has been officially approved by Secretary Shaw, President Richards and the versatile "Jake."

"Jake," every friend, "Jimmie" Reynolds, erstwhile secretary of the executive committee of the Republican State Committee, now assistant secretary of the treasury under Secretary Shaw, also has looked upon the deal and found that it was good.

"In the Fight to a Finish."

"We have no intention of laying down. We are in this fight to the finish," says William H. Sayward of No. 166 Devonshire street, secretary of the Master Builders' Association. Together with Jerome Jones, of Jones, McDuffee & Stratton, Mr. Sayward has been appointed by the Associated Board of Trade to look after its interests and head the fight against the government selection.

"We have every expectation," he adds, "of ultimately being successful in this matter. Secretary Shaw now has our protest in his hands. He is travelling in the South, vacationing, and has the matter under serious consideration. We expect an answer inside of a week.

"The whole matter is subject to Secretary Shaw's convenience. He can give his answer as soon as he likes and he can decide whether we can have a hearing to advance our protest in the matter or not. Prominent and influential persons have been brought to bear on him. Senator Lodge being especially earnest to see that we are successful.

"We have no particular site in view, but we do not want the United States appraisers' stores in that out-of-the-way place. Make it near the custom house. Our wishes have been entirely ignored and we will fight on for justice."

DAVIS CLAIMS MAINE ELECTION IS IN DOUBT

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR ALSO SAYS PARTY MAY WIN LEGISLATURE.

WATERVILLE, Me., Sept. 13.—The Morning Sentinel, owned by Cyrus W. Davis, Democratic candidate for Governor, publishes the following dispatch from Augusta, the State capital:

"The Maine election is still in doubt. There is a good prospect that the Democrats will not only control the next Maine House of Representatives, but on joint ballot will have a majority of the entire Legislature and elect a United States Senator to succeed Mr. Frye. As a sample of what is being done it may be mentioned that the investigation of the returns already shows the election of three Democratic representatives in places where the Republicans claimed to be winners. Information is at hand which indicates that this three may be many times multiplied, in fact times enough to insure the control of the Legislature."

In addition to the dispatch the Sentinel says:

"The Democratic candidate for Governor, Honorable Cyrus W. Davis of this city, was seen by the Waterville Morning Sentinel last night in regard to the above. He said, 'You may say that this election will be thoroughly investigated, and it is likely the investigation carried to the ballots themselves if need be.'"

NEWPORT DELUGED BY VIOLENT CLOUDBURST

Special to the Boston American.

NEWPORT, Sept. 13.—A terrific cloudburst hit Newport early to-day. For half an hour rain descended in torrents. Thunder roared almost incessantly. Lightning flashed with fearful brilliance, and several places were struck.

The worst damage was on the estate of Theodore M. Davis, the eminent archaeologist, who lives here Summers and spends his Winters houseboating up the Nile in search of antiquities.

The bolt set fire to a haystack. The flames spread to the stables. The stables were burned with $25,000 loss. Only by the personal efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Davis, assisted by the servants and some neighbors, were the horses and stable equipage saved. Among the horses taken out of the blazing structure were two driving horses which Mr. Davis uses for his personal pleasure, and which he values highly.

After daylight, when the city took stock of the damage done, it found that the greatest general inconvenience was the shutting off of the railroad and telegraph service via Fall River. The cloudburst caused a washout on the railroad at Pierce's cut thirty feet in length. Not a train can run in or out over that line to-day.

Anyone wishing to get out of town has to take the Wickford boat and continue the journey thence by train.

The torrent of rain raised havoc with the lawns and gardens on the big estates and in the streets generally. Every one of the side streets leading down the "hill" to Thames street is covered with loose dirt, gravel and other surface soil, washed down from the crest of the hill.

On the big private estates flower beds were battered down, and rare plants, shrubs and flowers of all descriptions were ruined. Many a Newport head gardener is surveying his carefully-tended gardens to-day with dismay.

It is reported that lightning struck in six places about the city, but the damage on the Theodore M. Davis estate is the only one of which any details are known so far.

The Davis place is six miles out on Ocean drive. The damage had all been done before the fastest fire department that ever turned out could have covered its distance, even if an alarm had been sent in. On this account the family had to depend on the household and neighbors for help in fighting the fire.

Fortunately the house itself is removed from the stables, and was out of the danger zone. In the dwelling are many valuable antiques which Mr. Davis has collected in his archaeological researches. These would have been disastrous, as they have great historic value and cannot be replaced.

325 REFUGEES FROM RUSSIA ON SAXONIA

With 325 Russian refugees among the 1700 steerage passengers, the Cunard Line steamship Saxonia arrived in port to-day. On the passenger list were also 187 saloon and 225 second cabin passengers, most of them Americans returning from trips abroad. Aside from encountering heavy seas and unpleasant weather, the voyage was uneventful.

The Russian refugees were formerly residents of Kovno, Vilna and Bialystok and other hotbeds of Russian revolution, and told pitiful stories of carnage and massacre that had driven them from their native land.

Among the first cabin passengers were Mr and Mrs. George S. Silsbee, with their son and daughter, Judge and Mrs. J. G. Dunbar and P. L. Whipple of Boston, returning from extended automobile trips on the continent; also Mr and Mrs. W. G. Dunbar, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Hamlin and Dr. Edwin E. Jack of Boston.

A child born to one of the Swedish steerage passengers on September 9 was named Waldemar Saxonia Johnson.

BOSTON POSTOFFICE FOURTH.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The postoffice receipts of Boston for the month of August were $371,768.25, an increase of over 10 per cent over August of last year. Boston still retains fourth place among the cities in the amount of postal revenues collected.

"IF OURS IS A DEAL, IT IS A SQUARE DEAL"

—W. R. HEARST

New York's Independence League's Nominee for Governor Briefly Outlines the Body's Attitude in Reference to Other Parties in Response to His Nomination.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—William Randolph Hearst's speech, made to the State convention of the Independence League last night in response to his nomination for Governor, was as follows:

"My Friends—I will reply to the nomination with which you have honored me in a formal letter. I will only say a brief word now to congratulate this convention on its splendid work.

"When I spoke at Syracuse I said: 'I believe that the American government should be placed directly in the hands of the American people.'

"This convention is a first step and a long step toward that end. The delegates of this convention have been elected by the people and represent the interests of the people. They have been free from boss dictation or any attempt at boss dictation. I said at Syracuse:

"'I have an absolutely sincere belief in the wisdom of the American people, in their integrity and ability.'

"I congratulate this convention on the evidences of its characteristic American wisdom, integrity and ability.

"I am honored to have been nominated by this convention. I am proud to run on this platform.

Programme Is Only Americanism

"I am devoted heart and soul to the principles expressed in every line of it. I never said that this programme is not socialism, or radicalism, or extreme of any kind. It is simply Americanism. If this platform is not Americanism, then common honesty is no longer a measure of American morals.

"If this platform is not Americanism, then a free ballot and fair count are no longer the basis of our American government. If this platform is not Americanism, then independence, equality and opportunity have ceased to be American ideals, then Jefferson's teachings have been forgotten and Lincoln's labor was in vain.

"Because we have received courteously and considerately a memorial from sympathetic Democrats, certain hostile agencies have cried 'deal.'

All the "Deal" in the Platform.

"All the 'deal' that is contemplated is expressed in this platform. We promise an honest administration. We promise an impartial enforcement of the laws. We promise to sweep from public pay rolls the servants of private interests. We promise nominations that are not bought. We promise to abolish class distinction and class legislation, and to restore a government for the greatest good of the greatest number.

"We ask in return the honorable support of all honest men. If that is a 'deal,' it is a square deal. I congratulate this convention on giving the people the first square deal they have had in years.

"I have said that I am an optimist and that I believe that the American people, under the guidance of the Declaration, will solve their problems for their own benefit and for the benefit of all humanity. I am more hopeful to-night than ever before. I believe we have begun well our great work and that the solution of all our difficulties lies within the able minds and loyal hearts of typical American citizens like ourselves."

My Program Not Radicalism; It Is Americanism, Says Mr. Hearst

I believe that the American Government should be placed directly in the hands of the American people.

I have an absolutely sincere belief in the wisdom of the American people, in their integrity and ability.

My program is not socialism, or radicalism, or extreme of any kind. It is simply Americanism.

If this platform is not Americanism, then common honesty is no longer a measure of American morals.

We promise to sweep from public payrolls the servants of private interests. We promise nominations that are not bought. We promise to abolish class distinction and class legislation, and to restore a government for the greatest good of the greatest number.

The solution of all our difficulties lies within the able minds and loyal hearts of typical American citizens like yourselves.

CONVENTION WILD WITH ENTHUSIASM

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The New York World gives the following description of last night's session of the Independence League Convention, after the delegates were called to order by Judge Seabury:

Charles J. Shearn, Mr. Hearst's lawyer, was recognized the instant the convention met to present the report of the committee on platform and resolutions. This was the matter uppermost in the minds of all the delegates, for it dealt with the reply to be made to the proposition for fusion with the Democrats made by Norman E. Mack, W. J. Conners and others. Mr. Shearn read the reply, which the Committee on Resolutions had drafted during the afternoon.

Go Wild Over the Reply.

"The convention deems it inadvisable to postpone the important business for which it has assembled," Mr. Shearn read, but got no further. The convention burst into an explosion of cheering which made all the previous demonstrations seem tame. The delegates came to their feet with a bound and, waving flags and banners in the air, screamed at the top of their voices. Not a delegate kept his seat. Apparently the turning down of the Democratic fusion proposal met with unanimous approval.

"Now we'll win," shouted a big delegate, leaping into his chair.

This sentiment seemed to express the feelings of the delegates. They shouted more vociferously than ever.

The last clause of the reply was not cheered, however, and it was this:

"But, if the Democratic masses should be unsuccessful in this campaign in an endeavor to overthrow the bosses, we should be glad to make common cause with them. If they should not be successful, we extend our hand in friendship to them and invite their support in the contest of the Independent ticket."

Mr. Shearn then started to read the list of proposed nominations selected by his committee, but he got no further than the name of William Randolph Hearst. The enthusiasm of the convention again broke into a bedlam. For exactly eleven minutes the delegates marched around the hall, cheered, waved flags and rang bells. Many of the delegates climbed on the backs of chairs.

Each of the candidates as his name was read by Mr. Shearn received an ovation. John Ford, whose name was mentioned last, was a close second to Mr. Hearst in the applause. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler was easily third. The applause for each choice was conventional.

Mr. Shearn finished by moving that the report be adopted.

No Nominating Speeches.

This innovation in convention procedure which dispensed with the usual nominating speeches seemed to please the delegates.

Instead of a nominating speech for Mr. Hearst Henry A. Powell took the platform and seconded the motion made by Mr. Shearn.

Mr. Powell described the convention as having "a wealth of independence which reminds one of the tree air that sweeps among the mountain tops or whistles in its way across the dancing waves."

"The ordinary convention," Mr. Powell declared, "has one big boss. This convention has just 1,611 bosses. Our platform will inaugurate the fiercest fight which has ever taken place in this State between the organization and the people."

In describing the sort of candidate demanded by the league Mr. Powell said:

"He must be a man who not only finds expression in his deeds. A candidate for public office may make any promises so numerous as to exhaust his vital force and unfit him for his duties after he has been elected and inducted into office. Post-election nervous exhaustion, however, is the most unanimous rest, which has been produced by the magnificence of pre-election promises, affords an unsatisfactory result to disappointed voters. Especially is this true when the promises evaporate in smoke, and doubly true is it when the curling smoke is that of a cigarette."

Groans for Jerome.

Instantly there were cries of "Jerome" and hoss and groans forced the speaker to pause for a full minute. Mr. Powell recited the public career of Mr. Hearst, and when he closed the convention adopted the report of Mr. Shearn with a roar of ayes.

There was wild enthusiasm when it was announced that Mr. Hearst was going to be brought into the hall, in anticipation the delegates began to cheer and took up the old campaign cry of "Hearst—Hearst—Hearst, Hearst, Hearst!" Chairman Seabury appointed Mr. Powell, Wallace Thayer of Erie, Henry F. Cochran and Mr. Searle of Oneida to go and fetch Mr. Hearst to the platform. While they were gone the entire convention kept time with feet, hands and flags.

The committee were only gone five minutes and as they reappeared on the stage at precisely 10 o'clock with Mr. Hearst in tow pandemonium broke loose. The frenzy of the delegates made all the numerous and noisy demonstrations seem as nothing. The band played "America," but it could not be heard a hundred feet away. Every delegate in the hall waved a flag and waved it. Each of the five counties became a waving forest of flags, keeping time with the music. Women cried with the men in enthusiasm.

Tries in Vain to Quell It.

After ten minutes of the uproar and flag-waving, Mr. Hearst, wearing a long ministerial frock coat and looking very pale, stepped to the front of the stage and raised his hand to stop the cheering. This only had the effect of redoubling it. From all around him on the stage delegates picked up flags and standards and marched down on the main floor of the hall where the feudiller marching and counter-marching which has been such a feature of the convention was renewed. The delegates began singing "The Red, White and Blue."

All the while Mr. Hearst stood in the centre of the stage smiling in evident embarrassment. At first his face twitched nervously, then broke into a smile. He responded to the shouts of the delegates by waving his hand to them. Policemen were popping all around him and hundreds of delegates, having left their seats, were grouped in great disorder directly in front of the stage. They stood cheering, their hands uplifted to Mr. Hearst.

Ex-Congressman Frank S. Black from the floor of the stage motioned to the delegates to bring their banners to the stage. The delegates started down the aisle and up the steps of the platform with a rush. In a few moments a banner in the hall was passed about Mr. Hearst. He was completely swamped by the delegates and banners. Even his tall figure was no longer visible from the floor of the convention.

Crush on the Steps.

At one time the crush on the steps and in front of the hall became so dangerous that Chairman Seabury ordered the delegates with banners back to the floor. The delegates obeyed, but continued to march and cheer. In the midst of the excitement a brass band struck up "Hail to the Chief" and marched down the stage. It bore the name of the Bedford, Hall, Eighty-eighth street and Park avenue.

During the remarkable demonstration the face of Mr. Hearst several times grew grave and his lips moved.

When the demonstration showed signs of lagging, Secretary De Pew rushed to the front and waved the delegates back to their seats. Temporary quiet then was brought to the front of the stairway as the cheering subsided. It was headed by the delegation sent by the Twelfth District organization.

Kept to His Lines.

Copies of Mr. Hearst's speech were distributed to the newspaper men just before he began to talk and he did not deviate from the prepared address. Some referred to the hall, though his voice is a fine one and shrill, and it was with great effort that he spoke loud enough to be heard in the rear of the hall and in the top gallery. At times he had to cease speaking the entire audience rose, seized coats and hats and started to go.

FALLS UNDER CAR, LOSES RIGHT HAND

William Martin of No. 1 Line street, Charlestown, a brakeman on the Boston & Maine railroad, while attempting to board a freight car opposite House 13 on Rutherford avenue, early Sunday, fell under the car. The wheels passed over his right wrist, severing the hand. He was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

OVERTURNED LAMP DOES $200 DAMAGE

Fire in the three-story wooden dwelling at No. 76 West Dedham street early today caused a damage of $200. The fire was discovered by Saraded Riley, and was caused by the overturning of a lamp in the room occupied by Joseph Smith. The property is owned by C. H. Holbrook.

FREE GIRL OF 17 ON CHARGE OF SHOOTING

GRAND JURY RETURNS "NO BILL" IN CASE OF ETHEL STURTEVANT OF LEBANON, N. H.

WOODSVILLE, N. H., Sept. 13.—The Grand Jury of the Grafton County Court rose this morning at 9.30 o'clock, and reported "no indictment" in the case of Ethel Sturtevant, who was charged with shooting with intent to kill her sweetheart, Jesse Barden.

Miss Sturtevant was released from the jail at Haverhill this forenoon, where she has been held for nearly four months, and the meeting of the girl and her faithful mother, who has stood by her side since her imprisonment, was an affecting one.

As soon as Mrs. Sturtevant received the necessary legal papers from the court to-day she secured a team at Woodsville and drove over to the jail, where she presented the release order to the jailer, and Ethel, whose face lighted up with relief and gratitude for the first time in many, many months, walked out of the dingy little cell room and fell sobbing into her mother's arms.

Whole Day on Case.

The Grand Jury consumed the entire day yesterday in the consideration of the Sturtevant case, deliberating upon the evidence presented from 10 o'clock in the forenoon until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Jesse Barden, who was alleged to have been the victim of the shooting, was called into the jury room three different times, and Mrs. Sturtevant was also a witness. Others called were John Barden, Steve Kennedy and Howard Stone. The revolver said to have belonged to Miss Sturtevant, and the one which is alleged to have fired the shots that wounded young Barden, was produced in evidence, it is said.

None of the jurors would discuss the case at all to-day, but one of them is reported to have said that the verdict returned expressed the general opinion of the members of the jury.

Broken in health and spirit, Ethel Sturtevant will leave New Hampshire forever. The bitter sorrow that she has experienced during the past few months has left its indelible mark upon her once happy face, and she has the dull glint in her eyes that follows a long season of grief and mental suffering. Partly relieved from her long confinement in the county jail, the girl arrives at her home to-day, and in a few days will go to Michigan to live with an uncle who has offered her a home.

The Sturtevant home on the Rosbury road in Hanover, near where the alleged shooting of Barden took place, has been sold, and the parents of the girl will remove to Georgia where they will live permanently.

QUINCY KNOWS PRESIDENT OF BANK--MORAN

District Attorney Declares Democratic Chairman Could Give Name of Man.

Josiah Quincy knows the bank president who declared the organization engineered by Mr. Quincy would not oppose District Attorney Moran for Governor if the latter would not "disturb the organization."

This is the declaration made by Mr. Moran to-day. Incidentally Mr. Moran states that he may later call the bluff made by Chairman Quincy in his letter replying to the charges Mr. Quincy made early remarks that he finds it "difficult to take him (Mr. Moran) seriously," and declines knowledge of the incident.

"Are you going to make any statement in reply to Mr. Quincy's letter?" Mr. Moran was asked to-day.

"Later in the day, if I see fit, I will make a statement," he replied.

"Is it true that Joseph H. O'Neil, president of the Federal Trust Company, is the man to whom you referred?"

"Ask Quincy," replied Mr. Moran smiling.

"Quincy knows who he is."

In his letter published to-day Mr. Quincy asserts that "it takes authority to negotiate, and not even a bank president can make offers without authority and commit anybody but himself." He states that no bank president is a member of the State committee, and puts the following two questions to Mr. Moran:

"Who is this anonymous bank president who made this proposal to you?

"And from whom did he derive his authority to make it?"

LODGE FIXED BILL SO JOHN D. CAN RIDE FREE

Standard Oil Trust Officials Get Free Transportation Under New Railroad Law.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—John D. Rockefeller wins again.

A new phase of the recently enacted railroad rate bill, which just cropped out here to-day, is that of all corporations doing business over the railroads of the United States the Standard Oil Company is the only one which will be entitled to accept free transportation.

The loop hole through which the Standard Oil escapes the anti-pass legislation, is found in the amendment offered to the rate bill by Senator Lodge, which puts the Standard Oil in the list of common carriers. By the terms of the new bill common carriers are allowed to give and accept free transportation among themselves. While the Standard Oil can, of course, do transportation business, owing to the fact that its only carriers are its oil pipe lines, it can accept and be governed by benefited by transportation issued to its army of employes and officials.

As president of the Standard Oil, Mr. Rockefeller will ride on a pass.

DEAD AT HOSPITAL FROM EFFECTS OF FIT

George B. Brown, address unknown, who fell in a fit on August 21 at the corner of Berkeley and Boylston streets, died at the City Hospital last night. The deceased has relatives at No. 200 Columbus avenue and at No. 430 Harvard street, Brookline. He was seventy years old.

LOUISIANA AT NEWPORT.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 13.—The battleship Louisiana arrived here yesterday and will take on coal at the Bradford coaling station.

SHEA TRIAL IN CHICAGO BEGUN

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—The trial of Cornelius P. Shea and sixteen other officials and members of the Teamsters' Union of Chicago who were connected with the teamsters' strike in 1905 began to-day. The prosecution is made that the trials will consume a year's time and cost $200,000.

Besides Shea, the following union officials who were most prominent in the teamsters' strike will be placed on trial: Jeremiah McCarthy, business agent of the French Drivers' Union; John Smith, president of the Coal Teamsters' Union; George F. FIREMEN OF BAY STATE IN CONVENTION

Annual Session — Worcester Keeps Delegates Interested and Busy.

REPORTS AND PAPERS READ

WORCESTER, Sept. 13. — Delegates from every city and town in Massachusetts having a regularly established fire department are in the city to-day in attendance upon the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Massachusetts State Firemen's Association. The convention continues to-day and to-morrow in Y. M. C. A. hall on Elm street.

The convention was opened yesterday afternoon by President Edward F. Dahill of New Bedford, and the address of welcome was delivered by Mayor John T. Duggan. Alderman Howard F. Gleason, chairman of the fire department committee, and Chief Coleman also delivered brief addresses on behalf of the city.

At last evening's session, Chief E. S. Hosmer of Lowell submitted the report upon the $15,000 relief fund appropriated by the State, showing that the expenditures for the year had exceeded the allowance by $3,000.

By a unanimous vote, the name of the late Chief William T. Cheswell of Boston was placed on the roll of honor.

Surgeons for Firs.

Irving E. Comins of Worcester, delivered an address on "The Citizen and the Fire Department" and Dr. George H. Hill of the Worcester department, read a paper entitled "Should Not All Cities Employ a Surgeon to Attend All Fires?" A pleasant social feature last evening was the entertainment of the delegates at the close of the session by the Worcester Protective Session.

Addresses Heard To-day.

To-day the delegates and visitors to the convention witness an exhibition of the city's high water service. This exhibition consumes nearly an hour and takes place at Main and Front streets, the members of Engine Company 7 giving the exhibition under the direction of Captain Edmund C. Noyes.

The regular business session opened at 10 o'clock. Chief W. B. Randlett of Newton, as chairman of the auditing committee, offered his annual report, and the annual reports of Secretary Burt and Treasurer H. B. Williamson were received. An address that created a strong impression was delivered by the Rev. G. S. Shaw of Ashby, Mass., entitled "The Massachusetts Standard Fire Insurance Policy: Is It Just and Right?" The address was comprehensive, and proved of value to the delegates. J. F. McKissock of Lowell delivered an address on "Proposed Synopsis of Bills Affecting Firemen Introduced in the Legislature of Massachusetts," and Eugene Moriarty of this city also addressed the convention briefly.

At 1:30 o'clock the visitors and delegates to the convention will assemble in the yard at headquarters on Mercantile street, where an exhibition drill will be given by Deputy Chief Avery's drill class. The class will go through all of the drill school moves, and the exhibition will last about one hour.

Ladder 5, Providence street, under the direction of Captain W. A. Adams, will give an exhibition of ladder raising at the hose quarters building soon after the drill school work has been given.

The afternoon session will open at 2:30 with President Dahill in the chair. J. F. McKissock of Lowell, as representative of the association on the tenure of office bill, which was brought up in the last session of the legislature, will make his report. E. R. Hardy of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange will address the firemen on "Conflagration from an Underwriter's Standpoint," Captain J. J. Cashman of Brooklyn, N. Y., will address the delegates on "New Systems of Standpipe Protection," C. H. Downing of Lynn will address the firemen on "What Advantage, If Any, Do Combination Hose and Chemical Wagons Have Over Straight Chemical Engines for Use in Cities and Towns Maintaining Fire Department." Rev. Allan Hudson of Brockton will also address the firemen.

The wives of the firemen and other ladies attending the convention as visitors will be entertained at a theatre party at one of the local theatres to-night, and the delegates will be busy in convention. An exhibition drill by the National First Aid Association from the Dedham department will be given in the hall, and Captain William Brophy of Boston will deliver an address on "Do Officers and Members of the Fire Departments Receive Adequate Compensation for Services Rendered? Is Such Service Properly Appreciated?" An address by the Rev. Willard Scott of this city will close the evening session, and to-morrow the convention will hold a business session in the forenoon, and the afternoon will be enjoyed by the delegates and visitors in inspecting the various points of interest about the city.

The Entertainment Committee in charge of the affair comprises Chief D. S. Coleman, Deputy Chief W. W. Avery, First Assistant Engineer E. J. Jones, Second Assistant Engineer W. B. Spooner, Captain H. B. Williamson of the fire patrol, Captain W. A. Adams, ladder 5; Captain C. C. Stonesway, Engine 2.

ALDERMEN TO TAKE UP FIGHT ON 'L'S' PLANS

The Board of Aldermen will next Tuesday give consideration to the vigorous opposition of residents and large property holders in the West End against the proposed structure of the Boston Elevated Company through that part of the city to Cambridge. The sensational charges that have been made by Councilman Daniel J. Kiley of Ward 8, who heads the opposition to the franchise, that the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs was absolutely owned by the Elevated Railroad Company and that the interests of the property owners affected were ignored, a petition signed by owners of $20,000,000 worth of property affected, against the project, has been presented to the Board.

"These men," declared Mr. Kiley to the Board of Aldermen, "prevented the taxpayers for a time from even getting a hearing on the proposition until a committee of the City Council waited upon the committee and demanded it."

Mr. Kiley quoted President Bancroft of the railroad company as stating that if a subway such as desired by the taxpayers were built the company would be merely a tenant, whereas if it were permitted to erect a structure over the streets indicated, the company would own the structure.

Joseph Bergman, ex-Councilman Mancovitz, Leo M. Friedman and Robert Homans have appeared before the aldermen in opposition to the project. The last named represented the holders of $3,000,000 mortgages on property in the West End.

FRACTURES SKULL BY FALLING INTO HOLE

Charles J. Cassidy of No. 11 Park street, Charlestown, was taken to the City Hospital this morning, suffering from a fractured skull. The doctors say he is in a critical condition. He is employed by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, and while working on Southampton street fell head foremost into a hole twenty-eight feet deep.

GERTRUDE COGHLAN TELLS WOMEN TO LEARN TO FENCE AND KEEP YOUNG

Actress Declares Constant Exercise Is the Foundation of Health and of Beauty, Too.

Fencing—Golf—Tennis, All Good, She Says, but the Firs. Does Most for Grace.

"Women—remain young," says Gertrude Coghlan.

"Yes, of course, but how?" comes back the anxious reply in feminine chorus.

"Exercise constantly," says Miss Coghlan.

"How?" ask the women.

"Fencing—golf—tennis," says Miss Coghlan, "fencing especially." She adds the alluring argument that fencing helps to reduce the waist.

On health and beauty, two subjects of absorbing interest to the feminine mind, does the actress now playing in "The Lion and the Mouse" discourse for the benefit of Boston women.

Miss Coghlan likes to fence, golf and play tennis. In fact, she likes about every kind of athletic sport suitable for a woman. But the three named above are her favorites. On these and on the general advantages of physical exercises she talks this way:

"The first thought that comes to a woman's mind after her physician advises exercise, or her health demands it, is what form to take up.

"I suggest from experience fencing, golf and tennis, and favor the first as the best.

"Fencing Best For Women."

"Fencing is unquestionably the best exercise of all for a woman. It gives grace to the figure and carriage, helps the poise of the body, enables a woman to stand easily erect, makes the figure supple and lithesome, and develops equally all parts of the body. Besides this there is much more in fencing than in most other sports, and the more adroit one becomes the more fascinating one finds fencing. It's a sport that can be indulged in beneficially by two people, or the positions and movements enable a woman to obtain exercise alone at home.

"After learning the positions and thrusts, a good way for beginners to become adept is to stand in front of a mirror or glass with the foil and give the various salutes, parries and thrusts.

"That fencing does not find favor with some women is probably due to the belief that a woman is required to wear bloomers or short skirts to obtain freedom of action. This is not compulsory, for I find that many women whose occupations necessitate their traveling carry foils in their trunks, and in their leisure hours use them to go through the evolutions in ordinary street attire.

"Golf Helps Walking."

"Fencing seems to meet all the needs of the body and mind, and therefore should come first as an indoor sport, particularly for women who are unable to go in for strenuous outdoor games. It gradually builds them up physically, making their muscles lithe and supple, while the constant thrusts and parries help to reduce the waist.

"Walking, of course, is the most universal form of exercise, and in consequence the walking one gets while golfing makes it a great game for any woman, as the walking it necessitates enables a woman to receive the full benefit of the most natural outdoor exercise at the same time it occupies the mind as well and holds the interest. It is always rather uninteresting for a woman to start out for a long walk by herself, so those by taking up golf her interest is constantly retained, and in consequence she covers a great deal of ground without fatigue. Then again the short golf skirt is a great comfort in walking.

Tennis for the Athletic.

"Tenais is the most violent of these three forms of exercise and is more adaptable to the robust, athletic woman than fencing or golf.

"If a woman will start with fencing first she will find that she can very easily follow it up with golf and then tennis.

"A good plan to follow is to exercise with the foils for an hour in the morning and to take a walk on the golf course in the afternoon, with an occasional game of tennis in the late afternoon on cool days. This should help any woman to retain her figure and attractiveness in the Summer, which is the time of year when most women usually take on flesh. This is undoubtedly due to exercising less and the inclination to make oneself comfortable and to recline lazily indoors or in a hammock in some cool spot."

MISS GERTRUDE COGHLAN.

Gertrude Coghlan's Rules on How a Woman May Remain Young

Exercise steadily, Winter and Summer.

Avoid sinking into a state of listless ennui and consequent uselessness. It brings illness and attacks of "nerves."

In exercising do not overtax your strength at the start.

Fencing, golf and tennis are the best for women.

Tennis is the most violent of the three and is more adaptable to the robust, athletic woman.

BOSTON BEAUTY SHOW GIRL IS HELD BY POLICE

Miss Barbara Manly, Hub's Representative in New York Exhibition, Arrested.

One of Boston's representatives to the New York beauty show a year ago, Miss Barbara Manley of No. 167 West Fourth street, South Boston, was arrested yesterday on a charge of being an accomplice to Patrick H. Cronin, an alleged notorious criminal, in the theft of $1,100 from Judson George of Beverly.

Barbara Manley is considered by her friends in the Peninsular district as a quiet and unassuming young woman, and her arrest for the alleged robbery is a great surprise to South Boston folks.

Miss Manley is not quite twenty-one years of age, and was born in South Boston, where she has lived with her mother, proprietor of a small grocery store on West Fourth street. She is considered by the instructors of the D street gymnasium to be the most beautifully developed girl in the class. Miss Manley is an earnest advocate of athletics for women and she is much opposed to wearing corsets and tight shoes.

According to the police, Miss Manley has developed other than posing for sculptors and photographers and contesting at beauty shows.

The alleged crime for which she is held occurred a week ago, when John George an Italian fruiter, came to Boston to see the sights, and during his travels about the city met at a cafe a young woman who, after she saw his wad, invited him to her room, where George claims he was drugged and robbed.

At police headquarters Cronin refused to divulge the location of his abode, or where he was Miss Manley had been for the past few days. The money has not been recovered, although both were searched. Miss Manley was even compelled to unfurl her golden locks for inspection.

SIR THOMAS OFFERED NEW YACHT DESIGN

Denny Brothers Want to Build Cup Challenger on Scientific Basis.

GLASGOW, Sept. 13.—Offer of a new yacht built upon a new and scientific basis, to challenge for the America's cup, has been made by Sir Thomas Lipton by Denny Brothers, the well-known shipbuilders of this city.

The suggestion is made by the shipbuilders that they shall have a free hand in the construction of the yacht. Their plan for the four overturns the ideas of Watson and Fife, previous designers for Sir Thomas, but they appear to have this ability to build a yacht which will give a good account of itself.

In his plans to challenge for the famous cup, Sir Thomas has been hindered by designers who declined to prepare designs unless the yacht constructed to conform to the new rating rules of the New York Yacht Club. Sir Thomas has for some time been endeavoring to ascertain whether the New York club would accept a challenge under the new rating rules, but has received no satisfaction. The new rating rules heavily penalize racing machines of the Reliance type.

Sir Thomas has sent the office of the Denny under serious consideration.

CITY FATHERS TO-DAY VISIT WONDERLAND

Ladies' Orchestra Feature of Last Days of Season at Magic City.

END IN BLAZE OF GLORY

This is "Mayor's day" at Wonderland, and the electric city is decked in gala attire in honor of the visiting city fathers of Boston. The distinguished party will pay a visit to all the leading attractions in the park, returning to the city in the evening.

The "Venetian Battle of Flowers" was repeated last night in response to popular request, and over 40,000 roses and carnations were distributed, each visitor receiving a blossom as a souvenir of the occasion.

The Salem Cadet Band closed its engagement at Wonderland last night. Master Johnnie Conkley sang his two songs with the band, "I've Grown So Used to You," and the ever popular "Kaffe." During the evening Director Missud, on behalf of the band, presented a solid silver cornet to Amusement Director Fred A. Bennett, who christened the beautiful instrument by accompanying the band in one of its selections.

Beginning with to-day, the famous Navassar Ladies' Concert Band will give concerts in the afternoon and evening, replacing the Salem Cadet Band. There are a number of solo artistes with the band, and at night the elaborate costumes of the fair players will be decorated with glowing electric lights. The band will remain at Wonderland until the close of the season, next Sunday evening.

Master Conkley will continue to sing with the ladies' band and will probably continue to render the two songs that have become such great favorites at Wonderland. The boy, although only 14 years old, has not the throaty soprano that many so-called "boy tenors" affect, but a rich, mello and genuine tenor, and of unusual range and expression.

The "Electric Steam Scintillator" continues in favor and all of the arena acts continue to meet with appreciation from Wonderland visitors. McPhee and Hill are doing a particularly clever act on the horizontal bars, and the parade of the nations and the Battle of Venetian gondolas in the lagoon always brings out the crowd.

After to-day there remains but three more days of the season at Wonderland—Friday, Saturday and Sunday—and the management asserts that they will spare no effort in making these three days remembered by the patrons of the resort, who have enjoyed so many happy hours there this Summer.

SURPRISED PARENTS BY HER WEDDING

Engagement of Miss Kakas to W. M. Gordon Was Known, but Marriage Was Not.

BRIDE'S BROTHER WITNESS

Friends of Watson Melville Gordon, formerly of Waltham, and Miss Josephine White Kakas of West Medford, daughter of the wealthier furrier, were very much surprised to learn that they were married last Friday. While their engagement had been announced it was not thought that the wedding would take place for some time. In fact, the marriage was not even known by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Kakas of Brooks street, West Medford.

The marriage was not without its romantic features for the witnesses to the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Dr. Hosea of Wakefield, at the parsonage, were Frederick Kakas, a brother of the bride, and his wife. As soon as the nuptials were performed the young couple sent a telegram to Mr. and Mrs. Kakas at their Summer home on the South Shore.

Mr. Gordon is well known in Waltham, where, until he engaged in business in Philadelphia, he was prominent in club and social circles.

Josephine White Kakas was well known and very popular in social circles in West Medford and in Boston. Her father, is in the furrier business in Bolyston street, and is well off financially. Their home in West Medford is a handsomely furnished residence.

Immediately after the ceremony, in which Mr. and Mrs. Gordon stole a march on all of their friends and relatives with the exception of Fred Kakas and his wife, they departed on a wedding trip through the mountains of northern New England. Upon their return they will take up their residence in Philadelphia, where Mr. Gordon has a handsomely furnished home awaiting his bride.

GARLAND DIES AT HANOVER, HEART FAILURE

Millionaire Succumbs After Long Fight Against Death at Broad Oaks Farm.

HIS CAREER ROMANTIC

James A. Garland, the New York and Boston millionaire, who had been a patient of Dr. F. Vernon Briggs at Broad Oaks farm, Hanover Four Corners, since July 17, died at 2.35 a. m. to-day.

An overexhausted heart is given as the immediate cause of death.

Shortly after his arrival at Broad Oaks farm, where Mr. Garland was taken from his Rhode Island home in a special train, his condition became very critical and his death was expected daily. He was suffering from pneumonia, with heart complications, and from nervous prostration.

To the surprise of the physicians he rallied several weeks ago and steadily improved until a few days ago, when there was a recurrence of the pneumonia symptoms and the heart trouble. On Monday last it was thought that he had only a few hours to live, but his vitality was so great that he survived until this morning.

Good and sunshine, love and estrangement mingled strangely in the life of Mr. Garland. Married in September, 1895, a few months after he had been graduated from Harvard College, to Miss Marie Louise Tudor, daughter of Frederick Tudor of Brookline, he was divorced by her about ten years later after a legal controversy which was marked by bitterness on the part of both Mr. and Mrs. Garland.

Soon afterward the pair were remarried, Society in Boston was said to have frowned on them, and they moved to New York. Another child was born to the couple, making the fifth, and the life of Mr. Garland was running along placidly until his recent illness.

GUILD FEARS LABOR; DELAYS NAMING JUDGE

Governor Hesitates to Appoint Judge Gaskill to Supreme Court Vacancy.

INJUNCTION IS RECALLED

Governor's Guild's reason for not making an appointment of judge of the Supreme Court in place of Judge Lathrop, who resigned, is said to be due to the fact that His Excellency is trying to avoid further controversy with the labor element by making Judge Gaskill one of the supreme Bench. Lathrop's successor. It is said he is looking for another judge in place of Gaskill, who is prominently mentioned.

Judge Gaskill on November 7, 1904, issued an injunction on behalf of the Whitcomb, the Reed and the Wheeler Iron Foundries because of the strike for wages conducted by the Iron Moulders' Union of America, Locals Nos. 5 and 434. Contrary to usual custom, the injunction was granted without notice or hearing to the defendants and was of a most sweeping nature.

Prohibited Use of Streets.

The injunction prohibited the patrolling or picketing of streets adjacent to the iron works or at or near the residences of the strike-breakers. By the terms of the injunction, the strikers could not walk alongside the non-union employes and could be held in contempt for being anywhere near them while the strike was on. The use of indecent language or epithets, assaulting or in any way interfering with the business, the hindering or preventing the performance of contract relations were also prohibited.

George Fred Williams was counsel for the iron moulders, and filed a demurrer to Judge Gaskill's finding, with the result that at a hearing before Judge Wait the injunction was dissolved because it had no standing.

In speaking of the matter, Mr. Williams says Governor Guild should be careful in making appointments on the judiciary.

"Governor Should Be Careful."

"That part of the government has great power," said Mr. Williams, "and the people should have some rights. Such a sweeping injunction was never before known, because it gave the authorities unlimited license in labor disputes."

Governor Guild has yet to confront the people and explain the appointment to the Supreme Bench of President Dunn of the Senate who had so much to do with the defeat of the overtime bill.

BOSTON SYMPHONY LEADER IS NOT ILL

Musical circles were startled last night to hear that Dr. Carl Muck, the noted German musician, chosen last Spring to lead the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was seriously ill at Tolebad, Austria-Hungary, and would be unable to fulfil his engagement here.

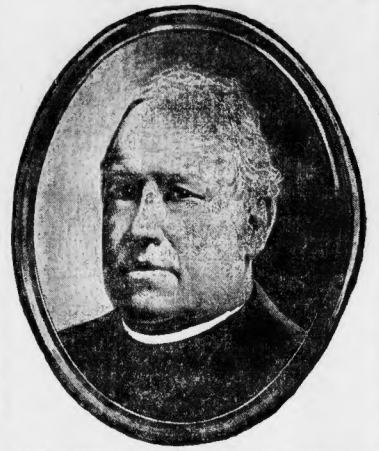
The report is denied by Charles H. Ellis, manager of the Symphony Orchestra, who says that Dr. Muck would positively arrive in Boston during the first week of October.

31 DIPHTHERIA CASES; 2 FATAL

LEOMINSTER, Sept. 13.—An outbreak of diphtheria, of which thirty-one cases have already been reported in this town of 13,000 population, is being investigated by the local Board of Health. The board is looking into two cases of hemorrhagic or black diphtheria, both of which have proved fatal.

CITY ASKS FOR CHEAPER 'PHONE

WORCESTER, Sept. 13.—Mayor John T. Duggan will go to Boston this week to urge the president of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company to reduce the rates on the city's telephones. The Mayor asserts that $104 a year is too much for a telephone. The Worcester end of the telephone company refuses to grant a lower rate.



NAMED BY THE PEOPLE

Without alcohol or injurious drugs, Father John's Medicine cures throat and lung troubles.

It is a food medicine, making flesh and strength.

Remember, it is not a patent medicine, but a physician's prescription, fifty years in use.

The sum of $25,000.00 will be given to any charitable institution if the following story of Father John's Medicine is not true in every particular:

Half a century ago Rev. Father John O'Brien was seriously run down through overwork and exposure, a cold and lung trouble threatening his life.

An eminent specialist gave Father John, as he was fondly called by his parishioners and friends, a prescription to cure the cold and remove the lung trouble, as well as to build up and strengthen the body.

Father John began to improve at once, and not only did the medicine cure his cold and cough, but it corrected his digestion and soon Father John was built up to his former health and strength.

He recommended the medicine to his people, and it became known in thousands of families as "Father John's Medicine," and was so named by the people and advertised, all with the approval of Father John.

DIES IN FALL DOWN STAIRS

Lying at the foot of the cellar stairs with her neck broken, the body of Mrs. Bridget Sammon, sixty-five years old, No. 151 Montmorency avenue, East Boston, was found at an early hour to-day. Miss Teresa O'Brien, who lives at the same house, found Mrs. Sammon's body and called Dr. Plummer, who has offices near by. He declared that the woman had been dead about eight hours.

Mrs. Sammon was seen last by her only son, Joseph H. Sammon. She was then finishing her housework preparatory to retiring for the night at 11:30 o'clock last night. As the door opening into the hall and the door way to the cellar are side by side, it is thought that Mrs. Sammon made a mistake and plunged headlong down the steep flight of steps into her cellar. She was a widow and survived by her son, who is about twenty-two years of age.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE TIDE STILL RISES

Wage Earners and Business Men Combine in Newburyport. Branch Now in Ward 6.

Special to the Boston American.

NEWBURYPORT, Sept. 13.—A meeting of independent Newburyport citizens was held last night in Central Labor Union Hall. For several weeks interest has been shown by wage earners and business men, Republicans and Democrats, about forty in number, have already signed the membership roll, and are determined to put an end to graft and boss rule, and hold public officials to a strict accountability to their constituents.

The meeting was very successful, and many citizens entered with a frank discussion of the principles of the Independence League.

State President Speaks.

After remarks had been made by George Clough, M. Maguire and several others, William L. Osgood, president of the State League, addressed the meeting.

It was voted to form a permanent Independence League in Newburyport, and the following officers were elected:

President, Nelson F. D. Ross; vice-president, William Nide; secretary, John H. Hudson; treasurer, T. B. D. Houghton.

It was voted to defer action upon an executive committee until the next meeting, on Wednesday of next week. It was the consensus of opinion of those present that there is great need of immediate independent political action.

"Action Needed at Once."

If it were longer put off, it was said, it would be more difficult for those who are to follow to act effectively. The thing necessary to be done is to unite wage earners and business men, so that they will act together politically, and thus the interests of both classes are identical.

It was voted to circulate membership rolls and build up a solid strong league in Newburyport. In a few weeks there will be a large working organization here.

The State League will be requested to send speakers to Newburyport in support of principles of popular government, as contained in the declaration of the league.

THOMAS F. PHELAN.

MICHAEL S. DREW.

OFFICERS OF WARD 17 LEAGUE

LEAGUE SPEAKERS ROUSE BIG MEETING OF WARD 17 VOTERS

Stirring speeches from the floor in the interests of the Independence League characterized the introduction of the movement to the voters of Ward 17 in Columbia Hall, Hampden street, last evening. When the meeting was called to order by J. P. Davis, the State secretary of the Independence League, standing room was at a premium. Part of the hall was reserved for young men who had not reached the voting age.

Permanent organization was effected with Michael S. Drew as president, Representative Theodore A. Glynn, chairman of the executive committee, and Thomas F. Phelan secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Drew said: "I feel that the time is ripe for a great movement of this kind to be launched broadcast, and I am satisfied that in no section of the city is such a movement more needed that right here in Ward 17, where boosism of the most pronounced type stares us in the face and sneers at our efforts to resist, even daring us to act. We cannot fail, if we but persevere, in bringing about decency in our politics. And to these young men here, to whom we must one day look for assistance in shaping the destinies of the needs of this ward, I want to say that they cannot more profitably spend their time than in listening to the wholesome doctrines expounded here this evening.

Blocked by Boosism.

Theodore A. Glynn said: "There is no need of telling you that this ward is controlled by corporate interests; that accounts in one measure for the success of the so-called leaders of the ward. I voted against every corporation measure that was introduced during the past year, with the result that I could not assist my friends as the followers of the bosses here have been assisted. Such is the power of boosism. But I believe there is a greater power. At any rate, we cannot deny that where decency, uprightness, manliness, as opposed to slimy methods of dealing with the public, which have almost made elective office a disgrace, there will be found right. And with right on our side we need have no hesitation in enlisting in this grand fight.

"The Independence League of Massachusetts has a mission to perform which should appeal to every man who admires the square and unselfish public service of Jefferson and Lincoln. A movement of this kind is a necessity in these days when patriotism is forgotten. All that is required of us is that we should look about for the men who will not lead us, but will be willing to listen to just demands, and these men elect to public office. If this can be accomplished office holding will be regarded as an honor conferred on honesty and disinterestedness."

"Vital Issue of the Day."

Thomas F. Phelan, the last speaker, said in part: "The vital issue of the day is this movement for independence which is sweeping over the country. The working classes have long felt the restraint of the leaders, but they dare not take a stand against the corporations and their representatives, the local politicians, have held the upper hand with such efficiency during the last few years that at last revolt is imminent. The large number of voters here this evening is an assurance that before we shall have celebrated our first anniversary the well known bosses of this section will be compelled to seek their proper level.

"We have one of the most difficult instances of coercion to deal with that can be found in any section of the city, but with the help of the many Republicans who are sure to forget with us their party affiliations, we may be assured of at least obtaining a square deal."

At the conclusion of the speeches President Drew told the members that another meeting is to be held within a week.

"The People Are Awakening," Says Former Congressman McEttrick

In joining the Independence League it affords me the greatest degree of pleasure to know that the people of Boston are awakening from the comatose state in which they have been for the past few years, and that they will not hereafter view with an indifferent spirit the calibre of the men whom they invest with the dignity and responsibility of representing the body politic in our legislative halls, and that they will give due credit to the record of the candidate or candidates that seek their support, irrespective of their affiliation with any political organization owned and controlled by a coterie of men who are puppets of corporations and trusts.—Hon. Michael J. McEttrick, former Representative to Congress.

WORST NOW FEARED FOR MISSING STEAMER

MAY SEND RELIEF SHIP TO HUNT FOR TRACE OF THE BREWSTER.

With no tidings from the missing steamship Brewster, now six days overdue on a passage from Port Antonio, Jamaica, to Boston, anxiety for her safety is increasing.

It is feared that she met with disaster in the terrible hurricane which swept southern waters recently.

The Brewster sailed from Long Wharf on September 1 under Captain Hine. Her crew is mostly Germans not listed at this port for she sails under the German flag.

The theory that her engines may have been incapacitated during the storm and that she is drifting helplessly about in the Caribbean Sea has actuated the United Fruit Company officials, who chiefly own, to consider the sending of a relief ship in search of the missing Brewster.

Isaiah C. Young, the Boston agent of the company, admits that grave fears are entertained for the boat and crew and says that they know absolutely nothing of her whereabouts.

They have every confidence in her captain, but the experiences related by the captain of the Admiral Schley, which encountered such a severe storm on its voyage here from the south coupled with the fact that she is so belated, lead them to fear the worst.

AGED WOMAN IN COURT 133 TIMES

Margaret Griffin, a vagrant, eighty years old, was in the Municipal Court yesterday charged with drunkenness. The arraignment marked her 133d appearance in court. She was arrested in Chinatown Monday. Judge Sullivan sentenced her to six months at the House of Correction.

WAR ON "JIM CROW" SCHOOLS

ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 13.—As the result E. Churchman, a Methodist preacher, is their candidate for member of the Orange Common Council from the First Ward, in which a majority of the negroes of the city live. A nomination in that ward is equivalent usually to an election.

Mr. Churchman led the fight against the separation of the white and negro children in the classes in the public schools. If he loses in the primaries his friends say they will run him independently.

LABOR NEWS

UNITED PRINTING TRADES LABOR COUNCIL 96 BOSTON, MASS.

Edward L. Logan, candidate for Congress, and Frank J. Linehan and Bartholomew Brickley, candidates for the State Senate, were among those who appeared before the Wage Earners' Central last night at a meeting to submit their labor records for indorsement. Committees were appointed to investigate the records of all candidates for Congress and the Senate. The records of the candidates for representative will be attended to by the ward clubs.

Vice President Charles E. Colwell presided in the absence of President John E. Potts, who is attending the convention of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners at Niagara Falls. The Central club will meet hereafter every Wednesday night at Wells Memorial building until January 1.

The Ward 5 club will be formed to-night at Wells Memorial building. Friday night the Ward 14 club will meet at No. 600 Fourth street, South Boston, and next Tuesday night the Ward 18 club meets at No. 1621 Tremont street, Jamaica Plain.

All candidates for representative may have the privilege of addressing the Ward 18 club next Monday at a mass meeting at No. 1,096 Tremont street. Among the speakers will be Secretary-Treasurer D. D. Five hundred engineers, union and non-union, attended the mass meeting at Faneuil hall last night under the auspices of Stationary Engineers' Union No. 24. Eighty-five applications for membership were received as a result of this, the first meeting in the educational campaign of the union.

Peter W. F. Whalen presided and spoke on the "Benefits of Organization." Among other speakers were Deputy State Inspector of Boilers Thomas Hawes and Ex-Senator William J. Corcoran of East Boston, who is a licensed engineer and who was a member of the committee on mercantile affairs which reported original engineers' license bill.

TO ATTEND ALL HEARINGS.

The permanent municipal ownership committee of Electrical Workers' Union No. 103, were instructed at last night's meeting to attend all meetings in Boston and vicinity at which that subject is to be discussed, including the hearings by the city council lighting committee. Alderman Bangs, chairman of the committee, sent a communication to the union, stating that he would send a notice of all future meetings of that body. L. E. W. Kimball, who represented the union at last Monday's meeting of the committee, made a report.

M. J. Joyce and J. J. McLaughlin reported the proceedings of the 32d New England District Council of Electrical Workers convention held last Sunday at Stamford, Ct. The next meeting will be held the second Sunday in December at Bridgeport, Ct. The executive board of the council meets at Worcester Sunday, September 23, at No. 231 Main street.

SAVES GIRL'S LIFE; HIDES FROM CHEERS

Because he displayed presence of mind and a heroic disregard for his own safety in rescuing a little girl from being run down by a rapidly moving automobile at Beachmont, George Barrett, a fireman on the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad, is being lionized by the patrons of the road to-day.

Passengers on a northbound train witnessed the heroic rescue yesterday. Trains usually pass at Beachmont station, bound in opposite directions. As a train Boston bound rolled into the station a little girl stood on the track directly in front of the incoming train. At the same time, the train from Boston came around a curve and realizing the danger of the child, Fireman Barrett leaped from his engine and dragged her to safety. The engine of the train from Boston grazed the brave fireman's leg, but he was uninjured.

The passengers on both trains cheered this fireman, but he promptly hid behind the tender and would not come out until his train moved on. Young Barrett lives in Lynn.

THREATEN TO SLAY CONSULS AT WARSAW

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 13.—Threats are being made at Warsaw by Terrorists that if a Jewish massacre is attempted they will kill all the foreign consuls in Warsaw as a means of forcing intervention in Russian affairs by the Powers. They fear that Warsaw is to be made the scene of a pogrom as horrible as the recent butchery at Siedlec.

Fears that a massacre is being planned in Warsaw, are growing every hour. The rough tactics adopted by the soldiers are taken to indicate such a program has been arranged. Measures of the utmost harshness have been adopted in dealing with the people, and it is believed the purpose of the soldiers in resorting to such tactics is to exasperate the people to the point where some attack is made upon the troops.

Emperor Nicholas, the Empress and their children will start to-morrow on board the imperial yacht Standart for a cruise in Finnish waters. Their destination is Bjorko Sound. It possible that they will go to Longinkoshe Castle, near Kotka, which was a favorite resort of Emperor Alexander III, but their departure has been so delayed by conferences at Peterhof that the Emperor has less than a week to spend as a host day.

He expects to return on September 18, when military review will be held at Peterhof. Soon afterward the Emperor will go to Livadia-on-the-Black Sea, where he will spend the Winter.

(2) It is the only known agent that can be used with certainty of results and absolute safety in all cases of cancer.

(3) That it is a pain reliever to its intense, vibratory, slightly-stimulating force upon the nerve cell.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Many Prominent Citizens Testify to the Merit of the New Leucodescent Light Treatment of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians.

Mrs. Nelson Lowe, R. F. D., Walpole, Mass., a well-known and highly respected lady who suffered from bladder and kidney disease, writes the following: "I am very grateful to the Osmo-Chemic physicians for what they have done for me. I feel that I have been cured. When I first came to their office I was very weak so as to be unable to do my housework. I had a bad case of kidney and bladder disease, and was very much discouraged. I had taken many remedies, but they did me no good. I had given up all hope of ever getting well, when I saw their advertisement in the paper. I went to their office and they told me they could cure me. I took their treatment and medicine, and in a few weeks I was able to do my housework. I have gained in flesh and strength, and feel like a new woman. I have recommended them to many of my friends, and will always do so, as I feel grateful for what they have done for me."

Mrs. Emma Card, well and favorably known in Merriman, Mass., where she resides, had suffered from what she thought was a bad case of kidney trouble, but after being thoroughly diagnosed as a fibroid uterine tumor, bladder and kidney disease, combined, she was decided to be operated upon at the hospital when a friend who had taken Osmo-Chemic physicians had treated successfully advised me to consult them. I did so, and their new light treatment was so successful that I gave up the operation unnecessary.

Mrs. Annie Chapman, wife of Eben S. Chapman, the well-known farmer, who resides at No. 207 Main street, Hyde Park, says: "I had been suffering from kidney and stomach trouble for years, and was told by my physician that I was afflicted with Incipient Bright's Disease. Nothing that I took seemed to help me, and when I saw the new light treatment of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians, I thought I would as well that I do not require medical treatment.

Melville A. stone, superintendent of the whole Reading, Mass., school, is completely restored to health. My ailment was poor circulation."

E. R. Forbush, prominent jeweller of Melrose, Mass., says: "The Leucodescent Rays a wonderful treatment, marvellous in its results."

Mr. William McConnell, well-known real estate agent, 170 Summer st., Boston, Mass., says: "I am thankful that the Osmo-Chemic physicians' new light treatment gave me relief from Rheumatism and Catarrh."

Mrs. Elsie Tobey, wife Charles st., Boston, Mass., wife of the well-known artist, Louis Tobey, says: "It cured me of kidney trouble."

Mrs. Edward Reed, 7 Cherry st., Salem, Mass., wife of the well-known furniture dealer, 297 Bunbury st., Roxbury, Mass., says she was saved from a surgical operation by the new light treatment.

Mrs. Jessie Henton, 52 Pond st., Natick, Mass., wife of the well-known barber, whose shop is located at 23 Washington st., Natick, says: "The new light treatment cured me of chronic peritonitis."

Mrs. Amelia Johnson, 822 Main st., Brockton, Mass., wife of the well-known painter and paperhanger, says: "The new light treatment cured me of stomach disease."

JACK O'BRIEN MATCHED TO BOX BURNS 40 ROUNDS

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Heavyweight Jack O'Brien will not be on the steamer Sierra to-morrow afternoon when she hauls out for a voyage to Australia. He has postponed his trip because he has been matched with Tommy Burns for a contest of forty rounds and a purse of $20,000. The affair will take place at Arcadia, near Los Angeles, and the principal money will be put up by the Arcadia Athletic Club, of which the "Lucky" Baldwin is a prominent member.

O'Brien had waited all day for some news from Sam Berger, who had promised to meet him if he postponed his trip to Australia. A few days ago Eddie Graney offered a purse of $15,000 for the Berger-O'Brien match. Berger, through his manager, Jack Hirsch, said that the amount was not large enough, but O'Brien had hoped that Berger would be induced to accept it. Graney kept the wires hot telegraphing to Berger, who is in the East, but received no answer. At 5 o'clock last night O'Brien had his mind made up to go to Australia.

When O'Brien received news of the Arcadia offer he said: "That settles it. The match with Bill Squires in Melbourne can stand over. I will stay here now even if the go with Burns hangs fire for a few days. When he is so obliging to meet me and the Arcadians are so willing to hang up a $20,000 purse something must come of it.

"Burns, I understand, has put up $1,250 with the Los Angeles Examiner as a forfeit on a side bet of $5,000. The promoters are strangers to me. But if they will place the purse with the Los Angeles Examiner I will cover Burns's forfeit and the match is on. As to the division of the purse, I will leave that to Burns, with the understanding that the winner receives not less than 75 per cent. If he wishes we will fight on a winner take all basis."

Later in the day acceptances were wired to Los Angeles and within an hour news was received that the Arcadia Club had actually certified check for $20,000 with the Los Angeles Examiner before 1 o'clock to-day.

The promoters will leave the selection of the day to the pugilists, and O'Brien stipulates that the contest take place within the next two months. The only terms imposed by the club are that the athlete will provide for forty rounds if necessary and that the contest must be for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Pete Rickard, who was in company with O'Brien when the Arcadia offer reached the Philadelphia heavyweight, said: "I am prepared to back Jack for $10,000, and will cover that amount just as soon as the Burns side cares to produce."

To this O'Brien replied: "You can bet as much as you like, Mr. Rickard, as long as it does not interfere with my side wager of $5,000 with Burns. That is to be part of our agreement and I do not want anything to conflict with it. What I mean is that I must get my own $5,000 wagered first before I help anyone else to place their bets."

Continuing O'Brien said: "I am sorry to hear that Burns went out of his way a while ago. Probably he considered that it would be necessary to toast me before I would agree to box him. That was all wrong. However, we are matched now and he can ease his feelings by thumping me when he gets me in the ring."

O'Brien seemed well pleased at securing a match. He will go to Los Angeles within a day or two to sign articles and arrange for training quarters.

Cartoonist Tad on Talkative Fighters, and Comments on

BERGER'S PLOT TO BEAT JEFF

By TAD.

The way some of our present fighters talk of becoming heavyweight champions of the world is very amusing.

One of them is one-tenth as good as the late Jim Jeffries was, but they figure by disabling him in training, etc., that they might beat him.

Sam Berger is the latest with the dope. He says that if Jeff ever trained again he would have to take off nearly 100 pounds, and by so doing would weaken himself so that he would be a mark.

Oh! that's great!

Here's a man who wants to claim that there is no one in the world his equal with the gloves. A great champion, eh?

It would sound fine, Jim Jeffries vs. Sam Berger. Look good on a sign, eh?

Story of Sandow vs. Lion.

It makes me think of the time Sandow was scheduled to wrestle with a lion in a cage at Central Park in Prince. The town was covered with flags, billboards, posters, etc.

Sandow vs. A LION!

Looked fine. They fell over one another getting into the park.

Think! the STRONGEST MAN IN THE WORLD against a LION.

Great play, great crowd, great scheme.

When the park was crowded to the gates, standing room signs taken down, police were stationed at the gates to keep the mob outside quiet, and with the band playing Sandow came out amid a tremendous cheer. The band played again, the drums beat and the crowd was almost crazy with joy.

Then they brought the poor lion out. He was muzzled; he had big leather pillows over his paws, a tight collar around his neck that choked him and together looked like a prize package that was wrapped up for fear of breaking.

This was the ferocious lion that was expected to spring at Sandow when he entered the cage. The lion that would tear him apart, toss him from one side of the cage to the other and eat the crowd mad.

NO!

The lion crawled over to one side of the cage, looked around once or twice and sprawled out as though he was to be given a bath and a big bowlful of the great crowd.

Sandow carefully entered the big cage, had the doors locked behind him, stationed guards around the outside with big irons and guns and then the music and the cheering stopped.

Sandow stamped his foot, yelled at the lion and waved his arms in the air like a jumping jack.

NOTHING DOING.

He went over closer and gently kicked the lion, then jumped back ready for the scrap.

NOTHING DOING.

The lion turned his head around slowly and looked at him as much as to say: "Cheese, Sandow, don't bother me."

Sandow, becoming braver, went over, lifted the lion up, rolled him over and tried to make him fight.

NOTHING DOING.

There was no more fight in the lion than there is in a biscuit.

Every time he moved it hurt him and he had no more chance of wrestling than a stuffed rabbit had.

Just so with Jeff.

Sure, take him out now, train him down to nothing. He's all in, and when you get him weak enough soak him. Great fight. Great men. NEW WONDER.

If some of these present day wonders would get in and fight instead of getting a cheap boost occasionally, it would be better for the game. If Berger, for instance, would go in and lick Al Kaufmann, Jack Johnson, Tony Ryan, Joe Jeannette and a few others, he might be thought a comer. This stuff talk about signing to meet Jack O'Brien in 1908 is all right for a sober boarding house, but we've had that built before.

Berger Hasn't Proved Mettle.

How do we know that Berger can fight? All the papers boosted him after his little six-round tete-a-tete with O'Brien. There were no knock-downs in that go. It wasn't such a ferocious affair. Because he outpointed O'Brien we don't have to see him fight Jeffries before we know whether he is good or not.

Terry McGovern went from the bottom right through the list to the top before he was a champion.

Battling Nelson fought from the dub class right through the bunch before he battled for a championship.

Jack O'Brien fought fifty or sixty hard ones before he was recognized.

Bob Fitzsimmons battled hard and often before he was taken notice of.

Nix on this rough talk about getting Jeff. As Mr. Sharkey says, "DO SOME-THING."

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—After taking three straight from the Nationals during the past three days the Athletics feel pretty strong to meet the Pilgrim bunch. The Boston team has just won 31 games less this year than the Mack boys, and Connie hopes it out that he should be able to take two out of the three this time anyway.

Neither Hayden nor Ferris came along with the team, the former staying in New York to have his teeth looked after. Ferris won't join the team until Manager Johnson says the word. It is probable that he will be in no more games this year.

Coombs will probably do the work to-day. Chick Stahl expects to beat Jack Young. The combination always draws a good house.

OLDFIELD TO RACE BALD AT ATLANTIC CITY

By J. C. KERRIGON.

Barney Oldfield and Eddie Bald, who are starring in the play the Vanderbilt cup, have the best possible way of getting free advertising. They are now located at Atlantic City and just to liven things up a bit have made a match for a mile race on the beach at that resort to-morrow morning. It is the pet Oldfield defeated Bald. Will the same thing hold good on the beach? The chances are that Oldfield has got the faster car of the two, as that is the one he used in the race about the first of Bald. Eddie does not care who wins in a play, but in real active competition he wants to be the one to win (never known to "lay down" and he won't do it for the man whose theatrical understudy he may be.

Manhattan touring seems to hold its attractiveness with the local tourists. He stands three seconds to meet the Summer touring in his Locomobile, returned home on Tuesday, and is now running up a new record between Boston and Charles G. Stevens, accompanied by his mother Mrs. Mary Ann Stevens, are spending the last days of the season in Brelton Woods, as are also Mr. and Mrs. W. Russell and Miss Olga Russell of Wellesley.

Engineer Robbins of the Metropolitan Park Commission, Boston, who has been experimenting with a tar treatment for the park driveways and boulevards of that city, also has in contemplation the use of an oil treatment. The commission has estimated that the tar will cost about $1,000 per mile for each treatment, and it is necessary to apply a second treatment after a year or so, but the second will not be as expensive as the first. It is expected, however, that this expense will be partly offset by a saving in the cost of sprinkling, as there is an almost entire absence of dust where the tar treatment has been used.

One of the biggest deals in connection with the foreign investment on automobiles, and one that will create considerable surprise in the trade, was consummated last week, when E. V. Hartford, President of the Hartford Suspension Company, perfected arrangements to manufacture and market in this country the famous Vinot automobile rim which Sims used on his Renault in the Grand Prix and which it was admitted enabled him to score a notable victory.

According to the arrangements, the Hartford Company, whose Truffault-Hartford shock absorbers are so well known in the American market, will immediately undertake the manufacture of these rims.

Ed. E. Robertson, general manager, said yesterday that the Vinot rim permitted a change of tires in two minutes and will successfully solve the annoying tire problem.

The largest power plant ever shown in a runabout was that seen in the eight-cylinder Buffum model, which was tested yesterday. This engine is supposed to be the results of Mr. Buffum's efforts of a year ago to produce the most powerful racing car then known, and its application to a runabout was rather surprising. The car itself was finished boat color and attracted no end of attention at the establishment of E. S. Hixed, the Buffum agent in Park square. Mr. Hixed tested the car for short business trip, during which he expect sto defeat any machine other than the Buffum he will handle next season.

Unusual interest is attached to the appearance of the Philadelphia National team here to-day, as their manager, Hugh Duffy, the oldtime Boston leaper, is reported to have signed with the Boston Americans next season to boss the club.

Duffy had had fairly good success with the Phillies since he first took the cherry in hand. He has had very poor material to work with, but at times his charges have shown first-class culture on the ball field, and have reflected great credit on the managerial ability of Duffy.

The Quakers stand fourth in the National League standing. They are so far behind the Pirates that there is no hope of their finishing in first place, but they have a pretty fair hold on fourth place, and the chances are that they will retain it till the end of the season.

There will be three games played between the Quakers and the Tenneyites at the South End grounds. The locals are glad that the Phillies are here, because they know they are a much easier proposition to beat than were the Giants, and the latter simply couldn't be beaten.

Lindaman will pitch for the Bostons against the Quakers to-day. It's a puzzle as to who Duffy will use, as he will not decide until just before the time to start the game.

Tom O'Neil will be in the points for Arlington, while John Conley will do the slab work for the Chelsea segregation. Mayor Fitzgerald is expected to attend the game and has promised to throw out the first ball. Much interest is manifested in the contest by members of the Knights of Columbus order and a large crowd is expected when the game is called at 3 o'clock.

WHICH CARRIES THE GREATER SHARE OF LIFE'S BURDENS, HUSBAND OR WIFE?

Dorothy Dix Asserts That It Is the Man That Bears the Real Anxiety of Wedded Life

WHETHER the husband or the wife is required to offer up more sacrifices on the altar of matrimony is a question open to discussion.

Undoubtedly the majority of women think that they are the chief victims, and that half of the evils of the disconsolate who lament that they cannot enjoy all the privileges of the bachelor maid with the perquisites of the wife who has somebody to stand for her bread bill and credit ticket at the department store.

They complain that when a woman enters the portals of wedlock she leaves freedom behind her, and that forth is a bond slave to her husband and family.

They assert:

(1) That she has to give up far more than a man does, for he, at least, keeps the frame, his precious occupation and amusements, and his chosen place of residence, whereas a woman, when she marries, is generally transplanted to a strange place, ushered into new duties, that may or may not prove congenial, and forced to assume an alias that may grate upon her ear, for instance, when Miss Gwendolin Montmorenci becomes Mrs. Bill Jones.

(2) That when a woman marries she sacrifices her ambitions, and can safely count on walking colicky babies instead of pursuing a career.

(3) That she has to give up her personal tastes, and flavors her food, talks with enthusiasm, and her theology with fear to fit predestination according to the preference of the man to whom she is mated.

(4) That she has to sink her individuality and make herself over to her husband's cut paper pattern of what a wife should be if there is to be any domestic harmony in the household.

(5) That she sheds her personal liberty at the altar, and is never free to go or come again as she pleases, for instead, no matter how old she grows or how sensible she is, she has to ask her husband's permission as if she was a child. Also, she has to ask him for the money to go and come.

(6) That matrimony is not the end, as novels assume, of a woman's struggle for love, but the beginning, and it lets her in for a never ending, nerve wearing effort to look beautiful, though ugly; slim, though fat; young, though middle-aged, and to be generally fascinating to a man in order to keep him from traipsing off with a blonde pompadoured creature of sweet sixteen.

(7) That ninety-nine out of a hundred women who marry spend the balance of their lives cooking, sewing, sweeping, mending, nursing for men who never show by word or deed that they appreciate the love and labor and sacrifice that are daily showered like undesired manna upon them.

Matrimony No Picnic

IN proof of these charges that the burdens of matrimony are heavy ones on women, women point inconsistently to the fact that most of the women you meet revelling about seeing the world are old maids and widows; that the same two classes constitute the majority of club women; and that the unmarried woman generally looks about ten years younger than her married sister of the same age, and is fifty per cent. better dressed.

All of this is to a degree true; but the married man is also to be recognized at sight by his care-burdened air and shabbier clothes. Matrimony has not proven a picnic for him, any more than for his wife. He, too, has had to wear his last year's overcoat because the "missus" had to have a new dress, and Johnnie was out of shoes, and Maud was simply dying for a locket and chain, and the twins had broken the perambulator.

But for these expenses he might have as smart clothes as any old bachelor in town, and spin around in his own gasoline buggy, for when it comes to expenses, running an automobile is an economy compared to maintaining a baby.

Women Escape It

NOR has the man escaped his sacrifices of ambitions, and tastes, and habits. Women say more about adjusting themselves to the angles of their husbands' dispositions than men are of how they dodge the sharp corners of their wives' tempers, but probably no woman is quite so much accused of a timid husband as a man is described before a shrewish wife.

The heaviest burden of matrimony, though, to a man is the realization that he has given hostages to fortune; that a wife and children are dependent on him. It is this that nerves him on to incredible toil; that spurs his flagging energy when weary; that makes him heroically struggle against sickness and seem strong.

It is the skeleton that haunts the poor man's heart, the little black beast that rides on the shoulders of every husband and father who is not rich.

Even, happily, ever know this numbing anxiety that most men always know, and compared with which a woman's matrimonial burdens are as light and as frothy as soap bubbles beside a granite doorstep constitute the majority of club bubbles.

DOROTHY DIX.

THE WIFE MAY THINK SHE HAS TROUBLES, BUT HUBBY SHOULDERS THE REAL BURDEN.

UNIQUE PARASOL

A LOVELY sunshade seen lately was embroidered with an exquisite design in many colors, wrought so cleverly that the parasol seemed to be painted. It was all executed by hand with the finest embroidery silks, and, to make it still more attractive, it matched the costume with which it was worn.

The design was that of a lovely woman's head, as perfect as though it were painted, ly occupied one whole panel of the parasol, while flowers and all sorts of pretty leaves and tendrils occupied the remaining panels and completed the design.

The "Homely Girl" Has Many Charms

SHE eyes rather wistfully the attractive qualities of some of her sisters—forgetting that she herself has a natural charm, individuality and rare. In these circles days the "Homely Girl" is an absolute necessity, for she is like a cooling, quieting draught.

She comforts tired workers on their return from the whirl of busy towns; she can make a lumber house or a mansion a place of happiness.

Her simplicity is her greatest charm. She pursues neither ambitions nor ideals, but contines herself to the essentially useful things of life.

Man, under her benign sway, becomes again as a little child; he drops the world for a time, and revels in the delight of domesticity, and returns again to the fray like a giant refreshed.

All her arts, too, are simple, easily fathomed; she practices no deep-laid wiles; yet she is a final and all-powerful factor in human affairs. The very directness of her purpose gains her end.

The "Homely Girl" is seen at her best of course, in the home, smiling happily and wearing a big apron. She dusts and cooks with quiet enthusiasm and manages her household as if it were an important philosophy.

Her cooking, be it whispered, is divine, and time she claims reverent admiration from many admiring masculine minds.

Her work seems a genuine delight to her. She toils with a merry heart, and when the time comes for play she disports herself with an equally simple and delightful pleasure. Artificiality shrinks from her presence.

To some people the "Homely Girl's" persistent goodness is actually trying, but they are persons of a warped, soured state of mind, people who look upon homeliness with a sneer, and label it "uninteresting."

To the "Homely Girl" whose mind is pure and sparkling as a mountain stream boredom is a dead letter. The iron of cynicism has not entered her soul.

Ways to Prepare Cheese for Lunches

LUNCHEON without cheese is as the story kind that is at hand. Return to the oven for another minute until the eggs are done and the cheese is soft. Turn each egg on a round of buttered toast, and garnish with parsley.

TOMATOES AND CHEESE

REMOVE the peel, and cut in slices three large tomatoes; if canned tomatoes are used, measure out half a can. Cook the tomato till soft, cut an onion into very small dice and add, and, when both are soft, turn in one cup of cheese that has been cut in very large cubes. Let the cheese soften but do not allow the mixture to boil after the cheese has been added. Hard or even stale cheese is best for this dish. Season with pepper and salt, and pour on squares of buttered toast.

GRAHAM CHEESE STRIPES

CUT a slice from a loaf of graham bread and then butter the slice and spread with a layer of grated cheese. If the flavor of French mustard or any prepared mustard is liked the buttered slice may be spread with it before the cheese is used. Butter a second slice, cut from the loaf, and press it firmly on top of the first slice and then cut in strips one inch wide and the length of the slice of bread, after having removed the crust. A little chopped bacon added to the cheese is an improvement.

EGGS AU PARMESAN

BEAT six eggs till light, and add one heaping teaspoonful of grated Parmesan cheese, a little pepper, but no salt. Beat together with an egg beater and when make into four small omelets. Fry in a skillet as usual, and when they are done sprinkle with grated cheese, fold over and serve on a hot platter and set in the oven for five minutes. Serve at once, pouring over all of Madeira sauce around the omelet if it is desired. Pass hot buttered toast with this dish.

SHIRRED EGGS, CHEESE

THE eggs may be served in individual dishes, or each one can be broken into buttered pattypans, breaking each egg carefully in each place after the pan has been heated. Bake till the eggs are nearly set, then draw the dish to the oven door, and sprinkle with grated cheese of

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

CHAPTER CVII.

Mr. Parslow at Home

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal-Examiner.

ACIA LODGE was the name of Mr. Parslow's residence in Ben House Street, and a very pleasant and comfortable place for a gentleman retired from the cares of business to spend his declining days in.

Not, by the way, that Mr. Parslow looked upon his days as "declining" yet, for he was only sixty, and particularly hale and active—a fact which he attributed largely to his energetic interest in his garden. He might often be seen in his shirt sleeves digging or hoeing with an enthusiasm that made his gardener hot and perspiring even to contemplate.

"There's no accounting for tastes," the latter would grumble resentfully to any crony who would listen to his grievance, "but the old man raves in hard work! And to see the same money neither, mind you! He really likes it. Gets so red in the face with it, sometimes. I think he's going to have a blood stroke one of these days. Not that I should have anything to say against that, only it means I've got to quicken the pace, too, to keep up with him; it's hard on a working man, for if I don't keep up with his pace, he's down on me like a bunghird of brimstone."

It was a roomy, square built villa, with a veranda running along one side of the house, detached and standing in its own extensive garden.

Charming grounds, with a well-kept terraced lawn and gay parterres of flowers. Some fine acacias, which gave their name to the place, combined with the high wooden fence to screen the house almost ing and Mr. Parslow was in his bedroom dressing for dinner with his usual care. He had a few friends coming in that night; Mr. Sevenways, the undertaker, with a prosperous business in Bensonhurst; Mr. Hocking, the drygoods man, and others; quite a bachelor party, though Mrs. Adelense Dubois, a woman of five and thirty, whose father had been French—"All that was most Parisian," Mlle. Hortense used to say with pride—tall and dark, with a fine figure, who was considered "a very fine woman," by Mr. Parslow's friends, would play hostess at the dinner table.

It was generally thought among his circle of acquaintances that Parslow would marry his housekeeper, and that he might do worse. It may have been, that Mlle. Adelense Hortense herself had some such hope, judging by the way that she flattered and laid herself out to please her master, and favored him with roguish glances from her black eyes.

Mademoiselle Hortense was a lady who always kept her two eyes open, and had the main chance. And whatever Mr. Parslow's personal attractions might or might not be, he had a very comfortable bank account; he had a very fine house, and in the days when the hauls of plunder in some of the biggest and most scandalous robbery cases would be brought to him to be disposed of—at prices that left a very small margin of profit for the benevolent-looking "receiver."

Parslow carefully fastened his made-up white dress tie, brushed his silvery hair, and then, having carefully put on his coat on the black frock coat that had been brushed and folded by the French woman's own attentive fingers. Then, with a final satisfied glance at himself in the glass, he went downstairs to await the arrival of the guests.

At the foot of the stairs Mademoiselle Hortense met him with a boutonnière that she had just gathered, and she arranged it coquettishly in the coat of the dapper little gentleman, stooping as she did so, for she was quite half a head the taller.

"Because you look so nice tonight, Mr. Parslow," she said, with a flash of her dark eyes; she spoke excellent English in a low, pretty voice, tinged with a Parisian accent. "So you that shall have the finest bloom in the greenhouse."

Sweet Compliments

"Eh, eh!" he said, pleased, nevertheless, looking up with a smile into her handsome face, with its dark olive skin and rich coloring. "What a flattering little speech! Ah, I wager you have been born half of the flowers!"

"You would lose your wager," said Hortense, promptly. "Only you are so dreadfully kind to the world"—sceptical, even of what is true! But how you must have had to do with flowers in your business who were not to be trusted, you are so fond of add-ing. What you do call, the little grains of salt!"

He looked at her sharply for the moment wondering if her apparently innocent words had a subtle meaning.

But no, of course could not know anything of the nature of his past profession, he reflected.

Well, I must admit I did meet a few men in the course of business whom it shouldn't have cared to leave alone in my shop," he said, with a little laugh.

And he laughed in appreciation of his own little joke.

"By the way, I shall be running away for a week or two to-morrow, mam'selle. I have to see to the Antic."

"Oh, about buying some Dutch bulbs at Amsterdam, I suppose?" Hortense remarked, artlessly.

"Yes, about some bulbs," assented Mr. Parslow.

He remembered the telegram sent to him from Kunstt & Company on the night of the plunder of the Herries diamond. It had been opened by his housekeeper, and telegraphed on to him at Newark.

It is reference to Dutch bulbs was as good a reason as any to give her for his journey to Holland, since he was naturally particularly anxious that no one should suspect he was carrying the famous diamond, the theft of which was engaging quite prominently the energies of the police, the "Mirror of the Moon," to dispose in Amsterdam.

Mr. Parslow had not seen Ramtit & Company since that night when he met Jim's cap and the diamond with it; he certainly was not anxious to see them—though, of course, they could not possibly suspect that the diamond had fallen into his hand.

"We Shall See"

Doubtless they would have insisted, that he ought to go shares with them, although it was through sheer carelessness on their part that they had lost the stone. His own astuteness in recovering it made him properly entitled to the whole of the plunder, Parslow argued, though he felt that his associates would not regard the matter in that light, least of all Ramtit.

Mark would have made short work of him, he would have made this dapper little gentleman exceedingly uncomfortable, if he had thought there was any such possibility.

He was going to start for Holland to-morrow with the "Mirror of the Moon," and was in full high spirits as he sauntered down the garden, enjoying the delicious fragrance and the color of the flowers, to see if his guests were coming.

Mademoiselle Hortense followed him; the fervored amiability had faded out of her face, once his back was turned, and a sullen look took its place.

"Oh, but how he worries me, the ugly old man!" she said to herself, in her dreadful complacency;" she told herself vindictively. "I do hate the unfriendly way he feels, and you think you deceive Hortense! As if she did not know why you do sometimes go to Amsterdam! It is for bulbs! Bah!

"It must be something very special this time, he has been in such good spirits; as goes so often to be safe to look at some-thing," ran her reflections. "Well, we shall see what we shall see, perhaps." And she laughed, and two rows of perfect white teeth gleamed between the scarlet

CAMERA MAN PRESSES THE BUTTON AND YOU GET $2

WOULDN'T any of the feminine readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN like to earn $2 without knowing it, without even being able to prevent it?

Of course they would.

Then watch out, while you are shopping, for the Camera Man. He presses the button—and you get $2.

Lots of women have earned $2 this simple way, just by being photographed by the Camera Man as they were unsuspectingly walking along the street. When the Camera Man photographs a woman—and he takes one every weekday—the picture is printed in the BOSTON AMERICAN. As soon as the original of the picture recognizes it and comes in and tells about it she receives a $2 bill as reward.

So keep close watch for the Camera Man and for the new photo daily. Any time you are out on the street in the shopping districts you may be caught by the Camera Man and your picture will be published in this paper.

The Camera Man circulates mainly in the neighborhood of stores patronized by readers of this newspaper. Remember, some woman shopper is entitled to be photographed and to receive $2 every day. Watch out—you may be next.

The Original of This Snapshot Will Receive a Reward of $2.

Avoid Wearing Too Tight Hose

THE habit of wearing tight shoes is a bad one, but worse even than narrow toes is the habit that many women have of buying hose too small for their feet and wearing them constantly.

It is needless to say that binding flesh in tight stockings is one of the most harmful forms of lacing, because it restricts circulation. And when that is impaired the individual becomes a prey to all sorts of ailments.

The ideal stockings have broad toes, so that the feet can fit straight in them. They should fit close to the flesh, not snugly enough to be uncomfortable, but just shape themselves nicely to the feet. Once such hosiery is put on no other kind will ever be purchased again.

The seams are, of course, small and soft, and if possible get the styles that have them on the outside of the foot instead of down the centre, where if the threads are broken a trifle tight they often chafe the flesh.

Five Prizes Given for the Best Postal Card Love Stories

ONLY four more days remain in which to win one of the five prizes in the postcard love story competition.

This week's prize winners will be announced next Tuesday. Postals mailed later than midnight Saturday will not be considered.

So much interest was shown in this fascinating contest that last week's offer of five prizes, aggregating $10, is repeated for this week. Tell how you met your sweetheart. Tell where you met her. If you can draw, illustrate it. Artists and authors will receive equal consideration.

Be sure to write or draw on a postcard only. Letters will not be opened in this contest. If you draw, use black ink, not blue, and do outline work only.

Address Postcard Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 40 Summer street. Send your postcard to-day. Be early in the field for one of the prizes.

The love story of the most unique or romantic meeting will receive a prize of $5. The next will be awarded a prize of $4, and to the three next best $1 each will be awarded.

Pimples and Blackheads.

Our New Remedy Produces a Cure in Half the Usual Time.

PIMPLES and blackheads have been described as "internal dirt" and this description contains much truth. You cannot lay claim to a high degree of refinement while you allow your face to be covered with disgusting blemishes.

In business, or in society a man or woman finds a pimply face to be a bar to success. In business the best position is open to the man of good appearance, and in society the woman with a pimply face finds her circle of friends very limited.

For 50 years the Woodbury Institute has been treating this trouble, and opened the door of success to thousands and thousands of afflicted people who had almost despaired of relief. Our new and perfect treatment now makes a cure possible in half the time formerly required, and success is assured in every case.

While to-day for question blank and full information, or, better still, call and talk with one of our specialists. Consultation free.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

We Are Fighting

The Big Piano Trust

And We Are Winning the Fight.

The name "Piano Trust" sounds big, looks powerful and frightens a good many small pianos dealers. They wouldn't dare to cut the price on the Piano Trust instrument. We have been cutting prices for months—cutting—slashing—and finally smashing the Piano Trust, and have driven almost the Big Piano Trust representatives in every city, State and town out of business. Nothing but little money going it, but we are still in the ring and selling almost any make of high grade Piano in our warerooms, at prices that make the Big Piano Trust sick.

Buy Pianos With Brains

For a small amount of money and the use of a fair amount of brains you can get the best kind of pianos here and at prices 30 to $200 less than you can at any large piano dealers' warerooms.

This is a fact—Don't take anyone's word for it—Investigate for yourself—use your brains and save your money.

Business Men, Have YOU Any Influence

Is It Not Strange That a Few Pirates Should Outweigh You All at Washington?

A great need of this country is the parcels post. It is needed by every business man—FOR EVERY BUSINESS MAN IS AT THE MERCY OF EXPRESS COMPANY EXTORTION.

A parcels post is needed by all the people, who suffer because they are actually forbidden by the bribe-giving express companies to establish a quick, cheap plan of exchange for their own benefit.

We are not going to dilate on the importance of the parcels post now. We merely recall to your mind that the commerce and the prosperity of this nation are absolutely handicapped by the conspiracy of the express companies, that make it impossible for goods to be transported except upon the payment of an extortionate tax to them.

What we want to do to-day is to ask THE BUSINESS MEN OF THE COUNTRY whether or not they feel ashamed of their own lack of power in the nation, in the Administration and with Congress.

We have the Republican party in control—a party as good and as bad as any other under a system in which the boss rules the party and the trusts own the boss.

This Republican party describes itself as "the party of the business men."

It talks ever of its love of prosperity.

There are millions of intelligent business men in the United States more or less allied with the Republican party.

EVERY ONE OF THESE BUSINESS MEN FEELS THAT HE HAS INFLUENCE AND EVERY ONE OF THEM KNOWS THAT HE AND ALL AMERICANS NEED THE PARCELS POST.

What happens?

In the Senate in Washington there are two senile old men from the State of New York—Depew and Platt—one a disgraced president of a railroad and the other the disgraced president of an express company. Both are corruptionists—one has been the professional corrupter of politicians for half a century and the other has been exposed as a receiver of money stolen from widows and children through insurance companies.

THESE TWO MEN IN THE SENATE ALONE HAVE MORE INFLUENCE THAN ALL OF YOU BUSINESS MEN PUT TOGETHER.

The express companies, representing a relatively small accumulation of capital and a small number of intelligent, determined men, HAVE MORE THAN ENOUGH POWER TO PUSH YOU BUSINESS MEN BACK, LAUGH AT YOU AND REFUSE WHAT YOU WANT.

Don't you think you ought to have enough influence to get through Congress a law that would do as much for this nation as free, uninterrupted circulation of the blood does for the body of an individual?

And don't you think it disgraceful to you, as men of character, that you are absolutely helpless, absolutely without influence, because your WISHES and your RIGHTS happen to conflict with the stealing plans of a few miserable corporations?

How long are you going to stand this? How long is it going to take you to unite to bring about prosperity by law?

How long will it be before you realize that the trade unions are giving you a lesson of which you are in bad need—showing that individuals, defeated separately, are invincible when united?

This nation needs a business men's union about as badly as it needs anything, if the corporations that are so rapidly wiping out the little business men are to be checked and controlled.

MONOPOLY LODGE GOES GUNNING

When Johnny Goes to School Once More

By James J. Montague

WHEN Little Johnny washes up to go to school once more,
He'll learn a lot of curious things he never learned before;
He'll find that constitution, which they'll teach him to uphold,
Is spelled this session with a "k," like kake, and kat and kold.
He'll know that high authority to spell an English word
Can only issue from a Scot, grown wise on Steel preferred.

WHEN Little Johnny goes to school, he soon will come to know
That s-u-c-c-e-s-s spells almost always dough.
And if he studies high finance, he'll learn that gentlemen
Who run the modern business world have two and two make ten.
And in the signs and symbols of the average Wall Street mind
He'll see the cipher stand for most of common human kind.

BUT Little Johnny's eyes are clear, his mind is quick and keen.
He sees his lessons everywhere, and finds out what they mean.
And more than any books can teach, and more than any rule
Of grammar or arithmetic he learns each day in school.
And may he some day wisely use whatever he may learn.
When, with his playmates, he shall serve his country in his turn!

Many a Man's Will Preaches a Sermon

By Rev. Albert E. George

A MAN died in Jamaica Plain a few weeks ago who showed his good nature in his will.

He was a cashier in a Boston bank for fifty-four years. He had passed through several changes in his religious convictions, but he did not carry spite in these changes. His will indicates he was glad to remember all the religious bodies with a generous gift of money.

Many a man dies who indicates by his legacies that he shows likes and dislikes. Far too many wills show this kind of a temperament.

If a will is to mean more than dollars and cents, it should indicate that a man can forget some of his past animosities. To send a parting shot toward enemies is so apparent in many wills.

This man lived above such doings. He could bury the hatchet. There is a time to forget and to forgive. That time is when you make your last testament. Don't show bad feeling that will leave its odor long after the grave has closed upon you.

Suppose some relative or an organization has turned against you. Don't stain the will with the feeling. Such a stain sticks. Nothing will rub it out.

Every one ought to be prepared to forget the slings and arrows. This getting even is too pugilistic. It may do for a time, but when you read "This is my last will and testament," let the layman even get the impression that you are not putting cartridges into a legal document.

There is always room for good sermons in wills, and don't you forget it.

Little Editorials from the People

AND INSTEAD THEY GET A REDUCTION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Surely the laborer is worthy of his hire. Yet you, who have championed the cause of labor, who have advocated unionism, you, who have protested against the terrible handicap under which the poor man exists, deliberately and with no apparent intention of a change subject two intelligent and ambitious young men to the most humiliating condition in society. To say it is inconceivable how the Hal-Room Boys keep up appearances in society on $11.50 per. For over a year, they have been forced to lead a hand to mouth existence. Personally, I want to lodge a most emphatic protest against a continuance of this treatment. The cause of humanity demands that you advance their salary. Give 'em a chance.

A LOVER OF "FAIR PLAY."

"MUST BE KILLED BY VOTES"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Let me thank you for Monday's editorial. I believe you would receive almost unanimous support from all not actually engaged in the liquor traffic if you fight this breeder of nearly all graft and rottenness in Boston, boldly, aggressively and politically. It must be killed by votes.

HE KNOWS ALL ABOUT WAITING ON THE TABLE

Notes by the Way

By Wex Jones

IN making holes for doughnuts be careful to round off the edges.

• • •

You should speak kindly to dumb things. Therefore, when the dumbwaiter jams, don't cuss.

• • •

It is distinctly bad form to run in a walking suit.

• • •

Spiked shoes are all very well in their place, but they should not be worn on bowling alleys.

• • •

It is not etiquette for the hostess to apologize for the holes in the Swiss cheese.

• • •

If locked out of your house at night be calm. Reflect that it might be worse; you might have been locked in.

• • •

Never get excited in an emergency. Keep cool, even if you fall into a vat of boiling lard. Do not lose your presence of mind—if you ever had it—but quietly await rescue. For instance, if knocked down by a street car, wait. Some one will pick you up off the tracks; otherwise traffic would be interrupted.

• • •

Do not laugh in the theatre, especially if the show is a farce. It encourages the actors too much. A little laughter at a tragical play is not out of place; it prevents the actors from feeling the misery of their roles.

• • •

Particular people enclose their souvenir postals in envelopes.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Compares Manners and Morals in Holland and Belgium to the Great Advantage of Holland

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1900, by American-Journal-Examiner

IT is a curious thing this difference in temperament and habits between the people of Holland and the people of Belgium.

There is only a span of three hours separating the countries.

Belgium has at various periods been a part of Holland. But the long dominion of Spain, France and Austria over it has entirely eradicated the Dutch characteristics and made it strikingly dissimilar in a thousand respects to its near neighbor.

We were a month in Holland. Never once did we see a drunken man; not once a woman who seemed from her manner, dress, actions or atmosphere to suggest questionable morals.

Such women no doubt exist in Holland. Human nature possesses certain universal characteristics which appear in all lands and ages.

But in Holland the drunken and dissolute phases do not present themselves to the casual visitor.

"I have not seen one woman who could be described as flirtishly inclined," said The Man to me one day shortly before our departure from Holland.

"Nor have I seen one man of that kind," I replied.

"Why should such a thought enter your head?" asked The Man, sternly.

Modest Holland

"IT does not unless it is suggested to me," I replied.

At Scavening, the famous seashore resort, beautiful women and noble-looking men sat at tables facing the sea and ate and drank and chatted, or they drove in fine equipages up and down the superb avenue, lined with glorious trees and never once did I detect that indefinable air of coquetry between them, which cannot be described by words, but is as unmistakable when seen as the subtle fire in the opal.

All the men and women took one another as a matter of course.

They were amiable, kind, contented. I did not see a man's eye rest once lingeringly, much less hungrily, upon the amazing bloom of the feminine Hollandcheek.

That, too, was taken as a matter of course.

Before we had been an hour in Belgium we saw an intoxicated woman taken to the station.

As we walked down the street a band struck up a lively air.

From some alley sprang forth a bevy of children; the foremost was a little girl in a red gown, with bare head and legs. She flung back her shoulders, shook her mop of bronze hair to one side and began a lilting motion, with a tossing of limbs and a turning of torso as she led the way down the street in front of the band, that made her a whole chorus of coryphees in one small body.

Bold Belgium

"THERE is more abandon expressed in that child," said The Man, "than in all the people we saw in our month in Holland."

And it was true. She was the embryo Bacchante and Terpsichore in one.

She was the blood of Belgium in circulation.

It is the same everywhere.

The music in the streets is different from the music of Holland. There it lulled you; here it excites; here it stirs you to expectancy.

It only woke dreamy retrospection, in the wholesome house world of the Netherlands.

The streets are noisier in Belgium; not with traffic, but with human voices and singing and laughter, that have not always mirth or happiness as their cause, I fear.

Here men look—the women invite looks. There is "flirtation" in the air. The waists of the women are smaller and their gowns are made to accent that lessened girth.

One realizes in Holland that the most fashionable woman desires comfort. In Belgium one realizes only that the women desire to be attractive.

The extreme cleanliness of the Netherlands is missing here in streets, restaurants and conveyances. The horses are not so well cared for, and the poor harnessed dogs often look hungry and their sides show worn and callouses under the harness.

My heart aches for them. I would like to set them all free and send them forth to frolic for the rest of their days.

Poor people know what they are working for—they have family ties and hopes of better times and faith in immortality.

The weary and hungry and overworked horse or dog knows only that he is hungry and tired and sore. As I have always had my God for comfort in my saddest hours, I wish I might be a divinity, with limitless power to do good to poor animals.

As it is, all I can do is to breathe a little prayer for the dogs and horses of Belgium, as I pass along.

What are fears but voices airy,
Whispering harm where harm is not,
And deluding the unwary
Till the fatal bolt is shot?

—WORDSWORTH.
